This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society was the first, and, till a recent period, the only one existing in the metropolis that had for its object the practice and annual celebration of athletic sports; and though in the present day the importance of athletic exercises in the promotion of health, and the due development of the physical powers, is becoming more acknowledged and appreciated, as shown in the establishment of Gymnasiums and Athletic Societies, both in London and elsewhere; yet, the above, as far as London itself is concerned, stands alone, both in point of influence, and the pre-eminent skill and science displayed in the performance of the particular exercises practised by its members.

The origin of this Society, and the exact date of its establishment is somewhat uncertain; the best living authorities, however—very old members—agree that it has existed more than a century, the earliest mention of its annual gatherings being, that the natives of Cumberland and Westmoreland were in the habit of meeting on Kennington Common on Good Friday to celebrate their favourite sports of wrestling and leaping. The prizes competed for in these days were insignificant in value, and few in number, a belt being awarded to the champion of the wrestling arena, to which all weights were admitted, and a pair of buckskin gloves to the best leaper, in imitation of the prizes at that time given for competition in many parts of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

The local affections and kindly feelings towards each other, so strongly characteristic of the natives of these counties, not only kept alive their ardour, but lent increased attraction to their meetings, drawing together a large number of old friends, many of them old playmates and schoolfellows, who, since leaving their northern homes, and being occupied in various pursuits in different parts of London, seldom met, except on such occasions, and at no time to enjoy themselves so much.

As years flew by, and its numbers increased, the Society gradually became more organized; better, and a greater number, of prizes were given for competition, till, in the year 1824, we find the first record of a code of rules, and a regular staff of officers appointed to carry out the sports and conduct the business of the Society. Gradually, although at first confined to wrestling—irrespective of weights—and leaping, the competition has been extended, and prizes given for other sports, such as pole jumping, hurdle racing, etc. Competitors have also, under certain restrictions, and by permission of the Committee, been allowed to come from the north to contend for certain classes of prizes, though debarred from others reserved for the London residents only.

Since the commencement the annual meetings have been held in various places:—viz., Kennington Common, Chelsea, St. John's Wood, Chalk Farm, Highbury Barn, Copenhagen House, Hornsey Wood House, Hackney Wick, and for the last six years at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, a place admirably adapted for so large an assemblage. In consequence of the unparalleled success which has attended the meetings held at the last-named place, the Society is now in a flourishing condition. Having passed through all the dangers which more than once imperilled its very existence, its now firm basis may be said to rest in a measure on the valued permission of Sir Richard Mayne for the wrestling to take place on Good Friday. After a full explanation was given of the nature and objects of the Society—combining charity with manly exercise—the worthy Chief Commissioner never hesitated a moment to sanction the meeting on the day named above, and at the same time gave instructions that as many men as might be required for the purpose of keeping order would be placed at the service of the Society.

In the year 1845, at the suggestion of Mr. Margetson, the old practice of collecting the funds in subscriptions of two shillings and sixpence—that amount, as now, creating a member—was discontinued in favour of hiring the ground on Good Friday and taking the entrance money. The success of the alteration has been of late years assisted by the growing taste for athletic sports; the prizes offered for competition have been considerably increased in value, and the charitable institutions of the two counties have been proportionately benefited. Up to the present time the donations handed to these benevolent associations have reached the amount of four hundred guineas. Great credit is due to Mr. Margetson for the persevering manner in which he has stuck to the Society through all its vicissitudes during a period of over forty years. But for his wise counsels, the dangers which so frequently menaced the well-being of the Institution might have proved fatal. A wrestler himself in his younger days—and one of the very best at his weight (11 stone)—before he was twenty years of age he had thirty belts hanging up in his father's house in Westmoreland. Mr. Margetson had the honour of winning a belt at the Ferry sports at Windermere, when Professor Wilson was present amongst the spectators. The grand old Professor shook hands with him in the presence of the assembled multitude, and pronounced him the best wrestler in England, at the same time offering to back him to wrestle any man of his weight who could be produced.

Professor Wilson was a great athlete, and in these days used to wrestle the champion at the conclusion of the sports held in the neighbourhood of the Lakes which he invariably attended.

Of late years Mr. Margetson has left much of the management of the business of the Society to its younger members; it may be mentioned that before relaxing his energies as an effective member, he was successful in securing the Agricultural Hall for the Good Friday of 1864, and where the sports have been held ever since. It may not be amiss to state here that amongst the younger members, the most prominent is Mr. Thomas Mein, the Treasurer. Mr. Mein is on the shelf now as a wrestler, but in promoting the sports, and augmenting the funds, thereby swelling the donations to the benevolent institutions, he is shedding a lustre round his name which will far eclipse his former celebrity. During the intervals of his other duties, no man has worked harder for the Society than Mr. Mein. All honour to him for so doing, and long may he be spared to lend a helping hand to this deserving institution, and to assist in dispelling the idea prevalent amongst that portion of the public which knows little of wrestling, and its associations—viz., that the favourite sport of the natives of Cumberland and Westmoreland is brutal and debasing. This vague notion exists to some extent amongst a certain few, but it is a very grave mistake indeed; that there are now a distinct race of professionals in the northern counties who live by the exercise of their thews and sinews is quite true, but at the same time, it must be borne in mind, that this scientific exercise is participated in by all classes on the border. A great many of the athletes are the sons of the landed proprietors, who have plenty of leisure to enjoy these popular amusements, which are of frequent occurrence in every valley, however remote. The champion's belt, which is the great trophy at these meetings, may be seen in almost every country house, suspended from the ceiling, sometimes to the number of twenty or thirty, hanging in a row. These trophies are regarded as treasured heirlooms, and are worn as proudly, and won as honestly as the ribbons and garters of more prominent statesmen. Not only in all the towns, but in the most hidden recesses of Cumberland and Westmoreland, these belts are offered for competition; the magnificence of the mountain scenery always lends a charm to the place of meeting, the swelling hills looking down on the beautiful spot chosen for the foreground of the picture; the smooth and grassy ring, filled with onlookers, whose knowledge of and interest in the sports unite in making these beautiful exercises very different indeed from the scenes of the prize ring or the race course. Perfect good humour always prevails amongst the competitors, who are amongst the most splendid specimens of suppleness, strength, and form that Britain boasts of. Charles Dickens once paid a visit to the ring at Windermere, and has thus described the wrestling in the pages of Household Words:—

"'Nay, you're over weight, John, by two pounds,' says the clerk of the ring to some candidate seated in the weighing scale, who smiles good naturedly, and takes off nearly everything, but still is not quite qualified; he puts, therefore, a couple of great coats on, and takes a run in the road by the lake's side, whereby his too solid flesh being swelled and dissolved into a dew, he comes to scale a light weight after all. There are a great many 'lay-downs' in the first round, so that the wrestling gets select, and very much improves as it proceeds. The third round comprehends, therefore (unless in the case of some accidental defeat) a score of the best men. They strip to their drawers and flannel waistcoats, exhibiting such studies for the painter and the sculptor as are rarely seen elsewhere. They shake hands before commencing in token of amity; nor indeed in the thick and strain of the struggle, while the face of each is over the shoulder of the other, and every muscle is exerted to the utmost, do these fine fellows exhibit any trace of savageness or personal animosity.

"Two umpires, nestors of the wrestling ring, walk round the combatants, and observe them narrowly; nor is their decision ever impugned by the losing man. While the pair are taking hold, gratuitous advice is offered to them freely by their friends, who sit or stand around the ring, but when they grapple each other a perfect torrent of Bonnie Carels, or Bonnie Kendals, as the case may be, cleaves the air. Then they strive, then they strain shoulder to shoulder, neck to neck, and at last touch ground perhaps, so nearly at the same instant as to require the most practised eye to award the fall; or, whirling circularly as in Fakir-dance, are cast violently to earth apart, or one, across the victor's thigh, comes heels over head, and measures all his inches upon the green sward with a thud. This last fall is the only dangerous one, and that only in the case of very heavy weights, and of very indifferent performers. Good wrestlers very rarely hurt one another.

"This quiet looking giant by our side, who has been champion often and often, and will be so again this day, although he is nearly forty, and more than twelve years past the wrestler's prime, has never, in his twenty years' experience ever been hurt. He won his first man's belt when a lad of sixteen years old, and in his house, across the lake yonder—a clean, neat little inn, set in a wilderness of flowers—has no less than one hundred and seventy-four of these wrestling zones; of all colors they are, and of all descriptions, from the broad, plain, Manchester-looking belt, won at the matter of fact and unornamental town, to the splendid award of Newcastle, embossed with the silver towers. Besides the mere leather (although there is nothing like it), there is of course a very considerable prize in money, averaging, perhaps, twenty pounds. Lesser pecuniary rewards are proportionately distributed among the less successful combatants, and besides these, a subscription prize is commonly made up by the stewards or spectators for which the sixteen last standers wrestle over again. Between the light and heavy weight matches (which are generally on following days), there are all sorts of other amusements, running matches, for a mile or so, dog trails, jumping matches, for which not only the aborigines enter, but usually several visitors, University men, and the like, who reckoning upon the iron shod boots and rough appearance of the natives are surpised to find them, when stripped, as lithe and active as themselves, and indeed a trifle more so! They are of course a lighter set of men, for the most part, than even the light weight wrestlers. There is jingling also, a sport which consists of blind-folding a number of men, and turning them out into the arena which has previously been strewed with sacks full of sawdust, to pursue some fleet-footed athlete, who carries a bell. It is great fun to watch these unfortunates taking accurate bearings of these sacks before they are blind-folded, and then to see the pitiless officials set these impediments totally afresh, besides turning each performer three times round at the commencement of the game. But the most graceful of all the treats at the ferry, is the pole leaping, when it is a candidate's last chance of three, his trial of course becomes proportionally exciting; shouts of encouragement greet him on all sides, and the women, if he be a bonnie laddie, often shed tears in their enthusiasm. The heavy weight wrestlers generally close these amusements. If others were Apollos, each of these is surely a Hercules; their grip is like the hug of a bear. The champion here, who was so good as to show us how to 'take hold,' the other day, in his garden, has left his mark indelibly in our back, besides having compressed our ribs so that we cannot breathe right yet. It has come to the last round, and our giant friend has but one foe to deal with—a true son of Anak, as tall if not so big as himself—he has got his work cut out for him, say the old hands; but success has made him somewhat over bold. How quietly he suffers these mighty arms to be placed around him, and those strong fingers to feel like one in the dark for a certain hold. Now they have gripped at an advantage, and the foe is only waiting for him to have hold likewise. He has hold! He has hold! see how they grapple and strain. 'Bonnie Robson,' 'Bonnie Longmire,' so interested this time in the individuals as to call them by their own names instead of the localities from which they come. Three to two on Longmire; two to one, five to——Longmire's down! Robson's felled him! Bonnie Robson! And indeed it was so; very quiet, but very grim our giant looked. 'It is the best of three for the last round,' quoth he as he took up earth in his hands to prevent them slipping, reminding us of the preparatory horn practice which the bull indulges himself in on the turf before he charges. This time it is two to one on Robson, who is indeed a very good man, but he is felled nevertheless, and the third time he is felled likewise, after a struggle such as the old Greek gods were wont to delight in sitting above the thunder on Olympus' top, or the Roman Cæsars, little less divine, in that great wrestler's ring by the Eternal City. So our giant friend has won his one hundred and seventy-fifth girdle, and is champion after all."

In the celebrated Olympian games, the only reward obtained by the conqueror was a crown of olive. The games were celebrated every fifth year, and were continued for four successive days. These were the most ancient and most solemn of all the Greek festivals, and drew together not only the majority of the inhabitants of Greece, but also people from the neighbouring islands and countries. Indeed, so much importance was attached to them, that the period of their celebration became an era amongst the Greeks, who computed their time by it. The conquerors returned home in a chariot drawn by four horses, and to render the ceremony of their entrance into their native city more imposing, instead of going through the gates, a breach was made in the wall. Ten months exercise at the public gymnasium was necessary before a competitor was allowed to enter the lists, and the wrestlers were in the habit of anointing themselves with oil, to brace their limbs, and to render their bodies slippery.

Although running, leaping, boxing, and throwing the quoit were engaged in by the athletes, wrestling appears to have been the principal amusement. The wrestlers were appointed by lot. Some little balls, superscribed by a letter, were thrown into a silver urn; those throwing the same letter had to contend with each other. It is said, that not only were ladies present as spectators, but also frequently amongst the competitors, and were sometimes rewarded with the crown. We are not told whether the crown was ever awarded to the fair ones for wrestling, indeed it is hardly likely, although in our day a parallel might be found. A good story is told of a lady who won the heavy weight prize at Haithwaite-yett, Nichol Forest; as, however, the truth of the matter is perhaps open to doubt, it would not be advisable to particularize.

Wrestling holds a high position amongst the bodily exercises of a great many countries, and in the encouragement of these sports, something more than mere pastime is kept in view. Like the ancient Greeks and Romans, these exercises are probably considered a fitting preparation for the exigences of war. It is much practised even in Japan. They hold their wrestling in the open air, in a ring surrounded by a railing about half the height of the spectators, who are as much excited by the performances as our own Cumberland and Westmoreland admirers of the sport. Their mode of wrestling is after the fashion of the Cornwall and Devon men. At the conclusion of the contests, each victor presents himself to the judge, who awards a prize of silver or gold plate, bearing the imperial arms.

There is a wrestler in Switzerland by name Halpenau, he is called the wrestler-king of the Canton Berne, and has a grasp like an iron vice; his mode of wrestling is to swing his opponents round his head, and but for their clinging to him, their fall would sometimes be no laughing matter. The canton at present, however, has two wrestler-kings. The name of the other is Wohlreich, a huge mountain of a man, who might with truth be called the Swiss Jameson. Though not so scientific as Halpenau, he has more weight and strength, and can lift a man as easily as ordinary mortals can carry a baby. Their last contest was abandoned because neither could obtain the victory, so that Berne contains two wrestler-kings.

In Switzerland the wrestlers are carefully watched by the committee, and fair felling is strictly enforced. In the matter of science they are far inferior to our own champions. Jameson or Wright would stand a good chance of winning the long-wooled sheep there, which is the prize in the Swiss wrestling ring. Jameson is, undoubtedly, the most difficult man to throw of all the champions of this generation; his enormous bulk would have made him more than a match for Longmire, although the latter, in point of science, was his superior. Jackson, of Kennieside, the finest wrestler of his day, might probably have held his own with him, but no more. Wright is certainly Jameson's equal in some respects, but labours under the disadvantage of inferior weight. Noble Ewbank, although a fine wrestler, was never equal to Jameson. Richard Chapman, of Patterdale, figured in Jackson's time. Chapman was a good wrestler, and won the heavy weight prize at Carlisle three years in succession; his last year was 1841, when Jackson took up the game, and won the four succeeding years. William Roblaw, of Egremont; R. Gordon, of Plumpton; William Donald, of Dereham, are all distinguished names. R. Atkinson, the Sleagill giant, although no wrestler, had the credit (?) of crushing his opponents to the earth, and winning some prizes. About 1825 we have John Weightman, of Hayton. Weightman was a thorough athlete, and, as a wrestler, unsurpassed. He was seen walking through the streets of Carlisle some years ago (when he must have been quite sixty) with all the jauntiness of his youthful days. Weightman was soon recognized, and the people were heard saying to each other, "There goes Weightman, of Hayton." His fame as a wrestler had lived forty years. Of late years, the two best light weight men have been John Palmer, of Bewcastle, and James Scott, of Carlisle. John Palmer's feat of winning the light and heavy weight prizes at Carlisle, in the same year, is without parallel. There was no getting him down. Scott, with the same tenacity of foothold, united all the graces of his art, and was the most scientific buttocker of modern times.

WRESTLIANA.

1824.

AT a numerous and respectable meeting of the natives of the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland residing in London, held at the Admiral Duncan Tavern, Charing Cross, March 25th, 1824, Mr. John Goulding in the chair,

It was resolved :—

1st.—That a subscription be entered into for the purpose of procuring a silver cup, two silver snuff-boxes, and two gold seals, to be wrestled for, and a pair of gloves to be leapt for, on Good Friday, April 16, 1824.

2nd.—That each individual subscribe two shillings and sixpence or upwards, and that none but subscribers, natives of the two counties, be allowed to wrestle.

3rd.—That a cup be given to the best wrestler, a snuff-box to the second, and a gold seal to the third.

4th.—That the whole of the subscribers who have entered the ring for the first prizes be allowed to wrestle for the two last, viz., a silver snuff-box and a gold seal, except the winners of the three first prizes.

5th.—That any individual who gains the silver cup be ever after excluded.

6th.—That none be allowed to wrestle who have not resided in London, or within the Bills of Mortality, six months.

7th.—That the gloves be given to the best leaper at four hops and a leap.

8th.—That the whole of the subscribers' names, competitors, be put into a bag, and on the day of wrestling be drawn out one by one, that they wrestle first and second, third and fourth, and so on; that the first name be entered in the minute-book, and placed No. 1; the second drawn be entered the last number, and in like-manner till the whole are drawn out; that the conqueror's name be always written in the same line opposite to the person thrown, that after the first round they then be called together, first and last, and in case there should be an odd number at last, that then they toss up, and the odd man stand out; but if it appear one man has wrestled one round less than the other, then the two shall toss which wrestles him.

9th.—That the Stewards for the present year be Messrs. William Chambers, George Byers, Joseph Collins, John Sowerby, and Edward Lamb, and that the sole management of the wrestling be vested in them. That in case of a disputed fall, a majority of them shall decide, and any individual objecting to their decision shall have his name erased from the list.

10th.—That the Stewards be requested to provide the prizes, and submit them for the inspection of the subscribers the evening before the wrestling. That the second prize be one-half the value of the first, the third one-fifth less than the second, the fourth one-fourth less than the third, and the fifth one-third less than the fourth; and that the cup and snuff-boxes have suitable inscriptions.

11th.—That the Stewards be requested to order a supper at some convenient tavern, and that they name both the tavern and place of wrestling at least one week previous to Good Friday.

12th.—That the whole of the rules, together with the minutes of the proceedings, be entered in the book which shall hereafter be kept for that purpose.

JOHN GOULDING, Chairman.

The wrestling took place on Good Friday, April 14th. Nearly 200 competitors entered the ring, and, at the conclusion of the sports, the following gentlemen were declared the winners of the three prizes:—

First prize, a silver cup . .	John Dobson
Second ditto, a silver snuff-box .	J. Richardson
Third ditto, a gold seal . .	William Graham

The gloves were won by James Johnson.

The following prizes were also wrestled for on Whit-Monday, June 7th, of the same year—viz., a silver snuff-box; two gold seals; and two pounds ten shillings.

1825.

At a numerous meeting held on the 10th February, 1825, it was proposed and unanimously agreed that a subscription should be entered into for the purpose of carrying into effect the resolutions of the previous year. Amendment to the eleventh resolution, "That the Stewards name the place of wrestling and where the supper shall be held one month previous to the day appointed." The following gentlemen were elected stewards:—

Mr. Geo. Byers
„ Jno. Martin
„ Thos. Richardson
„ Jos. Rudd
„ Richard Lamb

The wrestling was held on Good Friday, and, after a spirited and manly competition, reflecting the greatest credit upon the competitors, the winners of the different prizes were declared as below:—

FIRST TIME OVER.

First prize, silver cup . .	Jno. Beaty
Second ditto, silver snuff-box .	William Graham
Third ditto, silver snuff-box .	Jos. Lambert
Fourth ditto, gold seal . .	Jos. Rudd

1826.

A meeting was held on the 10th of February, 1826, for the purpose of making arrangements for carrying out the wrestling, and to take measures for raising subscriptions towards that object.

STEWARDS FOR THIS YEAR.

Mr. Joseph Bow
„ Henry Thompson
„ Joseph Bird
„ Mark Nicholson
„ John Watson

The wrestling was held on Good Friday. The winners of the prizes were

First prize, silver cup . . .	Robert Hall
Second ditto, silver snuff-box .	Jos. Dobson

The final wrestle between Hall and Dobson was a very unsatisfactory one, the referee ruled that Dobson had allowed himself to be unfairly thrown, therefore the prize which he would otherwise have received was withheld.

1827.

The subscribers to the Society met in great force at the "Admiral Duncan" Tavern, on Thursday, the 8th of February, 1827, to elect Stewards, and to take into consideration other matters connected with the wrestling. Great disapprobation was expressed at the conduct of Joseph Dobson in making a sham wrestle with Robert Hall the previous year. It was therefore proposed, seconded, and carried by a large majority, that Joseph Dobson be excluded from again entering the ring. The following gentlemen were then elected as Stewards :—

Mr. Jno. Goulding
„ Atkinson Brunskill
„ Joseph Rudd
„ John Westmoreland
„ Isaac Hinde

At a subsequent meeting held at the "Admiral Duncan" Tavern, Joseph Dobson, who was present, complained that the forgoing resolution had been passed in his absence. He requested that the sense of the meeting should be again taken on the subject. The question was fully discussed by those present, and the resolution confirmed by a large majority.

At a meeting held at the "Admiral Duncan" Tavern, on Thursday, the 15th of March, the following resolutions were agreed to :—

"That a Treasurer be appointed to receive from the Stewards every Thursday evening, all monies collected for the wrestling, and that the amounts and names of subscribers be entered in a book kept for that purpose."

It was then proposed, "That Mr. Jackson Stainton be appointed Treasurer," and carried unanimously.

The annual wrestling took place at Mr. Hintons' the "Eyre Arms" Tavern, St. John's Wood, on Good Friday, the 6th of April. The day was unusually fine, and about 1,000 persons assembled to witness the sports. Upwards of 170 competitors entered the ring. The wrestling commenced between one and two o'clock, and was kept up, with great spirit, till half-past seven in the evening. At the conclusion of the sports upwards of 200 gentlemen sat down to an excellent dinner, in the large room of the tavern, and, at the request of Mr. Graham, the champion of the day, Mr. Goulding, was called to the chair. Shortly after the cloth was removed the Chairman presented the prizes to the winners.

William Graham, the champion of the meeting, wrestled well throughout, and threw his men in a most scientific and graceful style. At the conclusion he was loudly and deservedly applauded. It may be remarked that his success here has followed him to another branch of sport; of late years, Mr. Graham has figured prominently in the racing world, and is now distinguished as the fortunate owner of the celebrated Formosa, the winner of the St. Leger and Oaks of 1868.

The following remarks are copied from Bell's Life, dated April 8th, 1827:—"The first prize was won by William Graham, of Dufton Wood, near Appleby; he is only nineteen years of age, but possesses a most athletic frame and wonderful strength. In vain did his opponents try every art, by twisting their limbs round his, and bearing their whole weight upon his body, to throw him off his balance; he stood as if rooted to the earth, holding his antagonist in his arms until, watching his opportunity, he shook him off and dashed him to the ground. It may carry some notion of Mr. Graham's prowess to state that he never once came to the ground with his opponent, although, it seldom happens that any good wrestler can throw his man without falling on him."

The following gentlemen were elected as Stewards for the Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society, at a meeting held at the "Admiral Duncan" Tavern, on Thursday, the 24th January, 1828.

Mr. William Graham
„ George Byers
„ John Atkinson
„ William Fawcett
„ John Harrison
Treasurer, Mr. Jackson Stainton

At a meeting held at the same place on the 13th March, it was agreed that Joseph Dobson should again be allowed to contend for the prizes offered by the Society; having been debarred one year, being considered sufficient punishment for the offence alleged against him.

The annual wrestling took place at Mr. Hinton's, the "Eyre Arms" Tavern, St. John's Wood, on Good Friday, April the 4th. Nearly 3000 persons were present, and upwards of 200 competitors entered the ring.

After the wrestling, over 250 gentlemen sat down to dinner, which was served up in the best style of the worthy host. Mr. Goulding took the chair, at the request of the champion of the day (Mr. Percival).

After the substantial repast had received a due share of attention, the prizes were presented to the various winners by the Chairman, as follows :—

1834.

The election of Stewards for the year 1834 took place at the "Ship" Tavern, Little Bridge Street, Blackfriars, on Thursday, the 31st day of January, when the following gentlemen were appointed :—

Mr. Stephen Fawcett
„ Joseph Peel
„ Joseph Robinson
„ John Compton
„ Isaac Tomlinson

Treasurer, Mr. Jackson Stainton

A resolution, that Mr. Philip Thompson's, "Peacock" Tavern, Maiden Lane, Covent Garden, should be the Society's place of meeting at the West-end, was adopted.

On the following Thursday Mr. Joseph Atkinson was elected a Steward, in the room of Mr. Isaac Tomlinson, resigned.

At a subsequent meeting, Mr. James Simpson proposed that the Society should offer prizes to two classes of wrestlers, viz. :—one for men of all weights, and one for men not exceeding 10½ stones; but it was considered that to deviate from what had been done in former years would be prejudicial to the interests of the Society.

The wrestling took place at Mr. Bowden's grounds,

"Chalk Farm" Tavern, on Good-Friday, the 28th of March. The rain fell in torrents during the greater part of the day, but, in spite of which, the sports proceeded with great vigour. Towards evening the weather assumed a more cheering aspect, at which time nearly 3,000 spectators were assembled. After the wrestling a large company sat down to dinner, Mr. M. Potter in the chair. On the removal of the cloth, the Chairman presented the Prizes to the various winners, accompanied by a few appropriate remarks to each. Mr. Robinson was loudly cheered when called upon to receive the champion's cup. He was a splendid wrestler, standing 6 feet 4 inches, and one of the finest men in the Guards. "They were giants in those days."

1836.

Mr. Jackson Stainton presided at a meeting of the Cumberland aud Westmoreland Wrestling Society, held at the "Ship" Tavern, Bridge Street, Blackfriars, on the 31st of January, 1836.

The principal business of the evening was the election of Stewards, which resulted as below :—

SEC. & TREASURER.
Mr. J. Stainton	Mr Holmes	Mr. John James

At a subsequent meeting, presided over by Mr. R. James, it was proposed by Mr. J. Holmes, and seconded by Mr. J. Snowdon, "That the sum of twenty guineas be paid out of the funds of the Society, i.e., ten guineas to the Cumberland Benevolent Institution, and ten guineas to the Westmoreland Schools, as soon after Good-Friday as might be convenient to the Treasurer."

The following resolution was adopted at this meeting:—"That any member of this Society who shall publish, or cause to be published, a challenge to wrestle in the public papers, and any person accepting, or causing to be accepted, such challenge, shall be expelled the Society.

The wrestling took place on Good-Friday, the 1st of April, at "Chalk Farm." In consequence of the unfavourable state of the weather, the attendance was limited. Rain fell heavily during the morning, varied by snow and hail in the afternoon, which rendered the ground extremely slippery. The wrestlers, however, stuck to their work under these discouraging circumstances, although they did not much relish their tumbles amongst the pools of muddy water which studded the ring. The following is the result:—

Despite the depressing effects of the weather, the sports were very interesting, from the fact that some of the best wrestlers of the day were amongst the competitors. The champion of the meeting, Joseph Wills, jun., exceeded all his previous performances, and threw his men right and left, as they came before him. Robinson Ridley, although not successful in gaining the first prize, made some splendid falls, and when he stood up with John Harvey for the final round, he was warmly received. The fine wrestling he had made during the afternoon, his well-built frame, and handsome appearance, rendered him a general favourite. However, although he stuck gamely to his man, he was compelled to succumb, after a well-contested struggle, and Harvey was declared the winner.

The election of Stewards, for this year, took place at a meeting of the subscribers, held at the "Ship" Tavern, Little Bridge Street, Blackfriars, on the 13th of January, Mr. Jackson Stainton in the chair.

The sports took place at "Chalk Farm," on Good Friday, March 24th. The weather being fine, the road leading to the "Farm," for a long time previous to the commencement of the wrestling, was thronged with people hurrying to the scene of action. The bridge over the London and Birmingham Railway was for some time blocked up with vehicles containing the more respectable portion of the spectators, amongst whom were noticed many officers of the Guards, who took a lively interest in the proceedings, in consequence of some of the "Blues" and "Reds" having entered their names as competitors. Between 6,000 and 7,000 people assembled round the spacious ring. A great number of ladies were present, who apparently took a lively interest in the sports. The celebrated Primrose Hill, which rears its head on the right, and every other eminence in the vicinity, bore their full quantum of spectators, who had not the needful to enable them to enter the enclosure.

The wrestling throughout was contested with the most determined vigour, the soldiers seemed to be pitted against the civilians, every fall was watched with eager interest, and the spectators were under one continued spell of excitement the whole afternoon. The most noticeable feature in the day's sport was the debut of Richard Margetson, he had recently arrived in London, fresh from numerous victories in Westmoreland, and brimming full of chips and elasticity. He threw his men well and gracefully, until he was drawn against William Earl, of Cumwhinton, a splendid wrestler, and much heavier than Margetson. Earl was sometimes called the "great Earl," from his strength and prowess as a wrestler. They were loudly cheered on taking hold. The superiority of Earl's weight, however, told in his favour, and after one of the most exciting struggles ever witnessed, he succeeded in buttocking his opponent very cleverly. The result was a great disappointment to Mr. Margetson's friends on the ground, who were in hopes that he would win the head prize. For the final falls Corporal Wills, of the Guards (Red's), and R. Metcalf, of the Guards (Blues), came together. The shades of evening had been gradually closing over the scene, and the contest could not be proceeded with, it was therefore deferred till a future day.

There was a dinner provided by the proprietors of the tavern, to which about 300 sat down. In the course of the evening the prizes were awarded to the successful men as follows :—

In consequence of the interference of the magistrates, the annual wrestling was held at "Chalk Farm," on Saturday, April 14th, instead of Good Friday. A large number of spectators assembled to witness the sports, which were managed in a very satisfactory manner, some of the contests were very interesting, R. Margetson distinguished himself by winning the light-weight prize, throwing J. Armstrong easily by the back heel. In the final wrestle, between William Earl and Thomas Abrams, an unfortunate dispute occurred: on taking hold Earl slipped, but recovering himself, threw his man and fell on him. He was immediately hailed the victor and carried round the ring, but the umpire ruled that in slipping he touched the ground, consequently Abrams was adjudged the winner. J. Allison, though unsuccessful, made some of the best falls ever witnessed. T. Hall was the favourite in the light weights, but, to the astonishment of every one, Murray, a youth, threw him by the cross-buttock in splendid style.

Some very exciting wrestles took place for this prize. That between Wiliam Earl and Jos. Wills, jun., was a splendid struggle. The "Great Earl" stuck to his opponent well, but was thrown by the hipe, amidst loud applause. T. Abrams hiped Ed. Stainton cleverly. The greatest sensation was caused when J. Haig and J. Carruthers were drawn together. Carruthers was a fine wrestler, and considered by many the champion of the London ring. Haig was fresh from the country, where he was well known as one of the best wrestlers of the day. When his name was called out, it got wind that he was the celebrated Jemmy Haig, of Scuggerhouse. The excitement was, therefore, tremendous when the men got hold; but it was soon all over, for Haig threw his man with the greatest ease.

R. Margetson and Dixon had a dog-fall. On coming together a second time, Margetson threw his man a splendid hipe. Margetson and Carruthers had now to wrestle for the head prize. The first hold terminated in a dog-fall. Carruthers hiped his man in the second trial, but lost his hold, consequently, the decision of the umpire was in favour of Margetson. In the third bout Carruthers again tried the hipe, which Margetson cleverly stopped, throwing him a clean cross-buttock. Margetson was loudly cheered for the splendid struggle he had made against such discouraging odds, Carruthers being a couple of stones the heavier man.

The sports were again held at the "Barn," on Good Friday, April 17th, and were witnessed by an immense concourse of spectators. The handsome prizes offered by the committee attracted nearly all the best men of the two counties. The celebrated Jas. Haig, of Scuggerhouse, was amongst the heavy weights. His name seemed to be quite enough for a good many of them, and it was not till the fifth round that he appeared in the arena. The contest between Plaskett and J. Robinson was the best of the day.

Plaskett was a light weight, and Robinson 6 feet 4 inches, (winner of the all weight prize in 1834), and over 16 stones. Robinson lifted him up like a cat lifting a mouse, when, Plaskett immediately put in the hank. Robinson tried to throw him several times, but Plaskett changed legs each time, and there they stood for some minutes, the little-un, watching his opportunity, while held up aloft in the arms of his powerful apponent, released him from the bank, made a sudden leap to the ground, crossed the giant, both legs, and laid him sprawling on the green sward before he could say "Jack Robinson." It was a most exciting struggle, and the victor was cheered over and over again. The enthusiasm of the spectators was now thoroughly awakened, and when G. Brunskill and Jas. Haig came together for the final falls in the heavy weights, the excitement was at fever height. The men were a very even match, as regards weight, but in height Brunskill overtopped his opponent by 3 inches, his height being 6 feet 1 inch, while Haig stood about 5 feet 10 inches, When they took hold, caution was the order of the day. Haig, however, with his dangerous swinging hipe, floored the soldier with ease, the next bout was ditto repeated, and James Haig was declared the winner amidst loud cheering.

The prizes were awarded as below:—

ALL WEIGHTS.

First prize, silver watch, 14 gs.	James Hay, Scuggerhouse.

Wills, jun., who threw him cleverly. R. Margetson was very unfortunate, going down in the first round in both prizes. George Brunskill was again well up, taking the third prize for all weights. The wrestling took place at "Highbury Barn," on Good Friday, April 21st. It was a splendid day, and a great number of spectators were attracted to the spot, among them a number of the officers of the first and second regiments of Life Guards. The meeting was a most note-worthy one, from the fact that the best men from the north had been induced to put in an appearance with the expectation of winning all the prizes, but in the heavy weights they were sadly disappointed, and the London residents remained masters of the field. The spectators were much delighted at the success of their metropolitan friends. Such a display of science, temper, and courage has seldom been surpassed and rarely equalled in athletic sports. The "man mountain" R. Atkinson, T. Longmire, Jonathan Whitehead, and Jos. Halliwell were all overthrown by amateurs.

To the surprise of all, Whitehead threw Longmire, and the giant, R. Atkinson, was thrown by C. Dobson, Atkinson swung Dobson round four times, intending to lay him quietly on his back, however, no sooner had Dobson reached the ground when he made a dexterous stroke at Atkinson on the outside, and down went the giant. Never was such a scene of excitement, handkerchiefs were waved, and hats were thrown up in the air, the cheering lasting several minutes.

The wrestling took place at "Copenhagen House," on Good Friday, April 6th 1849. The handsome prizes offered by the Committee again induced a number of the professional wrestlers from the North to take a trip to the metropolis. Foremost amongst whom was the famous Sleagill giant, Robert Atkinson taking the chief prize, Thomas Longmire of Troutbeck, "Bonny Longmire," the champion of England for many years, Jonathan Whitehead, once the most popular light weight in England, Jos. Harrington, and Jos. Halliwell, all invincibles. That they should take nearly all the prizes from their less experienced and less muscular metropolitan opponents is not to be wondered at. The committee, however, saw their mistake, and the following year passed a resolution that no wrestler would be allowed to compete who had not been in London from the 1st of January of the same year, thereby very properly confining the competion to residents in London. The Umpires were Messrs. R. Margetson, and J. James. Referee, Mr. Stamper.

A resolution, proposed by Mr. Margetson, and seconded by Mr. Rawlings, to the effect that no man shall be eligible to wrestle in the London ring on Good Friday, unless he has resided in London since the 1st of January of the same year, was unanimously adopted.

The wrestling took place at Copenhagen grounds on Good Friday, March 29th. The day was cold, but, notwithstanding which, the ring was encircled by a dense crowd of spectators, to whom the sports appeared to give the utmost satisfaction. The army was well represented—Corporal Edgar, Corporal Dixon, and Corporal Robinson each winning a prize. Edward Stainton, whose name is familiar to all who have been in the habit of frequenting the London ring, was also amongst the successful competitors. George Brunskill again carried off the all-weight prize, and was loudly cheered.

A meeting was convened by the Secretary at the "Guildhall Shades," on the 29th November, 1850, to decide about the removal of the wrestling to a more convenient place, at the grounds of Mr. Stones, at Hornsey Wood House, when it was resolved that the annual sports on Good Friday, 1851, should be held there.

The following officers were also appointed for the year:—

Mr. R. Thwaites.

It was resolved that all entries be made on or before the 16th of April, and any wrestler neglecting to enter his name and pay his subscription by that date, should not be allowed to wrestle on Good Friday. Five minutes to be allowed for the wrestlers to get hold; the names to be crossed out if the hold be not got by that time, at the discretion of the Umpires; and if either party refuses to stand chest to chest, with shoulders on a level with those of his opponent, and chin above, he shall be disqualified. Time allowed to slip hold, and after that the man that first puts down his head to be blown out.

The wrestling took place at Hornsey Wood House, on Good Friday, April 18th. The weather proved favourable, and an immense crowd of spectators assembled to witness the sports. The receipts were above the average of former years, and the assembly even more select than usual. Excellent accommodation was afforded by the marquee (erected by Mr. Stones), both to the wrestlers and the public; and as the programme consisted of only two classes of prizes, the sports concluded at an early hour. The most exciting wrestle of the day occurred in the second round of the heavy weight prize, when Edward Stainton threw George Brunskill, after this it might have been reasonably expected that Ned would come a long way towards winning, but the glorious uncertainty of the third round demolished his chance, as he was thrown at that stage by John Thompson. It will be seen that Matthew Palmer, of Peter's Crook, Bewcastle, gained a prize in the heavy weights. Matthew was never a clever wrestler, but his brothers, Walter Palmer and John Palmer, were thought the best men of their weight that Cumberland ever produced. In 1851, John Palmer carried off the heavy and light weight prizes at Carlisle, a feat unparalleled in wrestling history. He was heard to remark to a friend, on the first day of the wrestling, that he felt a superhuman strength within him, and did not believe mortal man could "fell" him. This proved to be the case, for he threw all that came before him, big and little; Walter was a much prettier wrestler than John. His hipe has never been equalled, and his outside chip was simply—perfection.

The Umpires were Mr. Jas. Wilson and Mr. Thos. Westmoreland; Referee, Mr. Richard Margetson.

The heavy weight prize was carried off by John Dixon, of King's Meaburn, a light weight wrestler. He won the light weight prize the previous year, and only lost it by one on this occasion, and he now gained the laurels in this unequal contest with some of the best men of the heavy division; Dixon was under 11 stone, and his success was rewarded with immense cheering. After the sports were ended a great number sat down to dinner. The Chairman, Mr. R. Thwaites, eulogized the orderly and straightforward conduct of the competitors, and trusted that the contests they had been engaged in would be an example to all to persevere in upholding the sport that to all and every one having a recollection of his boyhood's happy hours, was the medium of whiling away many a tedious leisure, and a stimulant to perseverance which he trusted they had benefitted from in later years.

The wrestling took place on Good Friday, April 9th, at Hornsey Wood House, and is thus described by Mr. Margetson in his report of the meeting:

"Good Friday was a brilliant day, and with gleeful hearts and blithe countenances, the natives of the North welcomed the cheering rays of the morning sun, as they thronged in hundreds to witness and participate in the sports endeared to them from their earliest years, many a heart panting with the eager hope of obtaining distinction in the wrestling ring which their far off friends might be proud to hear." It is the highest ambition of the majority of the natives of Cumberland and Westmoreland, when they arrive in the metropolis, to distinguigh themselves in the one grand pastime of the border; military renown gained by the soldier, or university honours by the student, carries with it no more pride than does the acquisition of laurels by the northern wrestlers in the London ring.

The entries were not very numerous, but the list included some good men, in the front rank of which stood John Dixon, King's Meaburn, who won the all-weights' prize, the third prize in the light weights also falling to his share. Alexander Scott, brother to the celebrated James Scott, of Carlisle, made his first appearance this year, and carried off the first prize for light-weight men, and the second prize for men of all weights. The Umpires were Messrs. J. Wilson and T. Westmoreland. Referee, Mr. Margetson.

A second meeting was held this year, and a prize of £10 was offered to be wrestled for on the 28th of June. It rained hard all day, and as the sports took place in the open ground, the attendance, both of wrestlers and spectators was very limited.

The following is a result of the day's wrestling :—

At a meeting held at Mr. Wharton's, Windmill Street, a letter was read from Mr. James Irwin, an old subscriber, enquiring whether, in the event of his coming to London previous to Good Friday, he would be allowed to wrestle. It was decided by the committee that he should be allowed to compete for the prizes, as the rule excluding those who had not resided in London since the 1st of January, did not apply to old subscribers who had formerly a fixed residence in the metropolis, nor to the military, whose duties frequently caused their absence, but was intended solely to prevent men coming fresh from the North to take away the prizes.

The sports took place at Hornsey Wood House, on Good Friday, March 25th. The day most anxiously looked forward to by the natives of Cumberland and Westmoreland, was ushered in by a heavy fall of snow; this unfortunate circumstance, however, had no effect on the success of the meeting, the attendance of spectators being unusually large, and the wrestling, if anything, more interesting than ever.

The Umpires were Messrs. T. Westmoreland and J. Richardson. Referee, Mr. R. Margetson.

An immense concourse of spectators assembled to witness the sports at Hornsey Wood House, on Good Friday, April 14th. The wrestling, especially for the light weight prize, was very good, and the performances were watched with eager interest. The celebrated James Scott of Carlisle was amongst the competitors; that prince of wrestlers carrying off the light weight prize in splendid style. About this time, it was remarked that there was a great falling off in heavy weight wrestlers, the light weights winning nearly everything. This is to be accounted for by the fact that wrestling was becoming a science in itself, and not merely an exhibition of strength, and that the heavy weights had failed to keep pace with their lighter opponents. Scott was then just in his prime, and stood a good chance of winning the all-weight prize; he was, however, compelled to succumb to Thomas Atkinson, of Old Town, Westmoreland, who threw the mighty champion of the light weights very cleverly. In the fifth round, Atkinson was thrown by Scott's brother Alexander, who won the second prize, George Brunskill, of Patterdale, gaining the first prize.

The Umpires were Messrs. Chicken and Westmoreland. Referee, Mr. Richard Margetson.

The sports took place at "Hornsey Wood House," on Whit Monday, May 27. The new Beer Act having come into operation this year, it was deemed advisable to postpone the Wrestling from Good Friday, to the above-named day. The weather was very unfavourable, and not a tenth of the number of spectators were present, who usually assembled on a Good Friday. The war in the Crimea operated most disastrously on the occasion, as at all the meetings hitherto, the stalwart forms of the Guards, and other fine regiments—abroad at the time—appeared conspicuous in the ring, and were wont to carry off many a well-contested prize. In addition to these drawbacks, Whit Monday not being a general holiday, is very unsuitable for holding a meeting of this kind. This instance affords a striking argument in favour of Good Friday. The umpires were Messrs. Chicken and Bell. Referee, Mr. Margetson.

A pigeon shooting sweepstakes took place this year, 10s. each with £5 added; 7 pigeons, 21 yards rise; charge of shot not to exceed 1½ oz.

It was arranged that the wrestling should take place at Hornsey Wood House on Good Friday, and duly announced in the public papers; but on the 9th of March, Mr. Stone, the proprietor of the grounds, received a notice from the police, forbidding him to allow the wrestling to be held on Good Friday at his place. It was therefore resolved that the authorities should be communicated with, and the following letter was despatched to Sir Richard Mayne, the Chief Commissioner of Police:—

"Islington, March 11th, 1856.

"Sir,—The natives of Cumberland and Westmoreland residing in London, have for the last century or more been in the habit of getting up a subscription among themselves for the purchase of prizes to be contended for in their favourite and national sports of wrestling, leaping, &c.; and have (on account of this being the only general holiday in the year) been in the habit of holding their meetings on Good Friday—a day on which alone the members of the Society (being composed principally of young men holding situations in wholesale houses in the City) can be spared from their employment. These meetings were for several years held in the grounds of "Highbury Barn" Tavern; but, on account of its greater convenience, have been held for the last five years at "Hornsey Wood" Tavern. From the highly-respectable class of young men comprising the Society—which is strictly confined to the natives of those two counties—no instance of the slightest disturbance or disagreemen has ever been known, a fact which the writer of this can vouch for, having been a member since 1826, and a competitor and winner of several head prizes. By way of precaution, and to satisfy the police authorities of the strictly respectable character of the Society, and the pacific and manly nature of its sports, the Committee have always been in the habit of engaging and paying for the attendance of a few policemen. Having, however, received an intimation from Mr. Stone, the proprietor of "Hornsey Wood House," that there is likely to be some objection made, on the present Good Friday, to the celebration of their usual annual sports, and being most desirous to avoid anything that may bear even the semblance of opposition to the constituted authorities, I am desired by the Committee to make this appeal to you, and to request that we may not be prevented meeting together as usual to enjoy our sports, so anxiously looked forward to and eagerly joined in at our annual gathering by nearly every Cumberland and Westmoreland man in London. To us this meeting is a festival; an assemblage of men from the same villages; of old school-fellows and friends who have known each other from childhood, and whose kindred tastes and early associations attract them to one spot, from the whole surface of this wide metropolis, to greet each other as such friends only can, and to view or join in sports which,

from their earliest years, they have delighted in. As a proof of the respectability and high standing of this Society, I may point to the fact of the Earl of Lonsdale, the Hon. Colonel Lowther, Mr. Marshall, M.P., as well as several other noblemen and gentlemen being constant subscribers and frequent spectators, and that any surplus funds, arising from our meetings, have invariably been given to the charitable institutions of the two counties, as much as forty guineas having on several occasions been handed over at a time; I would also appeal to the police authorities in the neighbourhood, and state that the wrestling seldom commences before 3 o'clock, P.M., sometimes later, and that as the entrance to the grounds can be had quite unconnected with the house, it is not proposed in any way to interfere with the law of closing public houses; that no member belonging to the Society has the slightest pecuniary interest in it, directly or indirectly, but that every shilling which is collected is accounted for and spent in prizes, for the use of the grounds, or given to the charities as before-mentioned.

In apologising for troubling you at this length (which I should not have done if I could have given the necessary information in a smaller space), I beg to say that we will hold ourselves responsible that no breach of the peace shall occur, and that we will most willingly pay the expense of police on the grounds. Most anxiously hoping that you will not put your veto on the harmless amusement we have so long enjoyed, there being no other day in the year (as frequent trials have proved) on which we could possibly hold the meeting, your favourable and early reply will greatly oblige,

Sir, yours most respectfully,

RICHARD MARGETSON,
For the Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society.

To SIR RICHARD MAYNE,
Chief Commissioner of Police,
Scotland Yard.

Sir Richard Mayne's reply was, that the wrestling should be allowed to take place without interruption on Good Friday, and in addition to which the Society was to be supplied with as many men from the police as might be desired for the purpose of keeping order. The annual meetings of the Society were thus placed on a firmer basis than ever they had been since its first existence.

The wrestling took place at "Hornsey Wood House," Tavern, on Good Friday, March 21st. When it became known that Sir Richard Mayne had sanctioned the meeting on that day, the sports were looked forward to with the greatest interest, consequently, an unusual number of spectators assembled on the grounds. The wrestling was very good and gave great satisfacton. The only hitch in the proceedings occurred in the final fall between John Smith and Geo. Brunskill; Smith's knee touched the ground, but recovering himself quickly, he continued the struggle, and finally threw Brunskill. It was thought by those who did not see Smith's position, and others who did not understand the laws of wrestling, that he was the victor. The Umpires, however, very properly awarded the first prize to Brunskill. In the first round, all weights, Joseph Gilchrist distinguished himself by throwing Alex. Scott very cleverly. In the third round, however, George Brunskill finished his career by throwing him after a good tussle.

The Umpires were Messrs. Richardson and Bell, Referee, Mr. Margetson.

The wrestling took place at the "White Lion," Hackney Wick, on Good Friday, April 22nd. This was a very successful year. In addition to the sports being the best that ever had been witnessed, the list of competitors included some of the best light weight men we have had from the north—viz., George Sanderson, G. Mason, J. Mason, Jno. Smith, J. Tiffin, &c. Mr. Sanderson's wrestling was much admired, and this being his first year in London, he received a hearty reception. It will be seen that he succeeded in gaining the second prize in the heavy weights and the third in the light. In his wrestle with G. Mason in the fifth round, light weights, it was the general opinion of those present that Mason was thrown, although the umpires ruled otherwise. They were drawn together again in the third round, heavy weights; on going out to his man, Sanderson held up his hand to the assembled multitude, and said,—"See if I don't 'fell' him this time!" No sooner had they got into holds, when amidst the cheers of the spectators, Sanderson hiped him in the most brilliant manner possible.

The Annual General Meeting of the Society was held at the "Guildhall Shades," on the 7th of March. The principal business to be transacted was the election of officers, which produced some very smart competitions, especially that for the position of Chairman. The wrestling took place at "Hornsey Wood House," on Good Friday, April 6th. The attendance of spectators was very numerous, all parts of the grounds being crowded. It will be seen that the heavy weights showed, as of late years, great inferiority, three of the prizes in that class were won by light-weight men, John Smith, the winner of the heavy-weight prize being under 11 stones, and always able to wrestle in that class. The Umpires were Messrs. Frank Bell, and John Richardson; Referee, Mr. R. Margetson.

The annual dinner was held at the "Guildhall Shades," on the 19th February, and was well attended. The Secretary read a report showing a handsome balance in the hands of the Treasurer. The usual loyal toasts were then given, and duly responded to, after which the election of officers was proceeded with, which resulted as below:—

The wrestling took place at "Hornsey Wood House," on Good Friday, March 29th. The list of competitors included the very best men in England, consequently the sports were of more than ordinary interest. An immense crowd of spectators assembled to witness the wrestling, which was a very scientific display; such an array of talent had never before been witnessed in the London ring. Noble Ewbank, the best built wrestler of the day, was there; the gigantic William Jameson, the scientific Richard Wright, James Scott, the light weight champion, Ben Cooper, "Old Ben," the hero of a hundred rings, T. Rawlinson, G. Glaister, &c., were amongst the number. There were four classes of prizes this year, viz., the London prize for men under 11 stone, confined to residents in the metropolis. The all-comers' prize for men under 11 stone. The heavy weight prize for all-comers, and a prize for 16 picked men. In addition to which prizes were offered for running, high leaping, and pole-leaping. In consequence of such an elaborate programme, the sports occupied two days, commencing on Good Friday with the London 11 stone prize.

The following is the result:—

London Prize.

William Wilkinson	James Brunskill

J. Dixon	D. Dover
John Smith	R. Wilson

R. Atkinson was drawn against new blood in the shape of William Gilchrist, who made very short work of the old 'un. William Wilkinson and J. Brunskill made a good wrestle, resulting in favour of the former. It will be noticed also that George Sanderson fell to a new comer in this round.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
Thomas Mein	John Smith
John Dixon	Jos. Tiffin

William Gilchrist, odd man

The best wrestle in this round was that between Thomas Mein and John Smith; it was confidently expected by the majority of the spectators that Smith would win the head prize; however, no sooner had they got hold when Mr. Mein upset all the calculations of the House of Westmoreland by throwing Smith, in less than a twinkling, by the inside click. The cheering all round the ring was immense. Smith being quite a couple of stones heavier than his lithe little antagonist.

Fifth Round.

In the final round Gilchrist gained the first fall, but Dixon proved too much for him, and afterwards threw him twice in succession. Gilchrist wrestled well, and had he been half-a-stone heavier, would undoubtedly have won the first prize.

The wrestling came off at "Hornsey Wood House," on Good Friday, April 18th, 1862. There was a large attendance of spectators, notwithstanding the counter attractions in and around London. The pole-leaping—a new feature in the sports—elicited great applause. The champion, Robert Musgrave, made his first appearance in the London Ring this year, and took the first prize; William Jameson, unwilling to be shaken off, making a tie with Baines for second place. The Umpires were Messrs. Bell and Brown. Referee, Mr. R. Margetson. The following is the result of the sports:—

The London Prize,

T. Rowe	W. Armstrong
G. Reed	J. Armstrong
G. Sanderson	J. Pugmire
Wm. Gilchrist	J. Walker

Tom Robinson, odd man

John Smith and Jos. Gilchrist had a tough wrestle. Smith missed his first stroke, intended for a finisher, when Gilchrist seized the opportunity, but the great reach of his tall adversary enabled him to avail himself of that very old-fashioned chip, the back heel, by which he threw Gilchrist heavily.

Third Round.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
G. Sanderson	G. Reed
John Smith	R. Brunskill
John Dixon	Wm. Gilchrist

G. Sanderson threw his man in his usual scientific style; Smith screwed Brunskill down. When J. Dixon and W. Gilchrist stepped into the ring they were loudly cheered. They soon succeeded in getting hold, when Dixon won the fall by the half-buttock.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
John Smith	George Sanderson

John Dixon, odd man.

The excitement was very great when Smith and Sanderson came together, and a splendid wrestle was anticipated. There was a great disparity in the size of the men, Smith being the taller by nearly a head. They got hold without much trouble. Smith immediately led off with the swing, but Sanderson stuck to him like a leech, with difficulty keeping on his feet; now he is nearly down, and the spectators think it is all over; now he saves himself by a quick movement, but Smith is off with him again, with the swing, this time like lightning; again Sanderson follows him, stops him with the inside click for an instant, when round goes Smith again with another swing,—mortal man could stand up no longer, and the wiry Sanderson goes down, after making by far the best wrestle of the day.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
John Smith	John Dixon
John Smith	John Dixon

John Dixon had no chance against the superior weight of Smith, who threw him twice in succession, and was declared the winner of the gold watch.

Poor Smith died of consumption on the 27th of June, 1867. His gentlemanly and unassuming conduct won the respect of all who knew him. He was a great favourite in the London Ring, and a good wrestler. His first appearance in the metropolis was at the anniversary at Hornsey Wood House, on Good Friday, March 21st, 1856, when he succeeded in winning the second prize for men of all weights, a silver snuff-box. On Good Friday, 1857, he carried off the heavy weight prize, a silver watch, throwing the celebrated Brunskill and several other famous wrestlers. In 1858 he was second to G. Gibson at Hackney Wick, and obtained a silver snuff-box. At the summer fête at the Crystal Palace, shortly afterwards, he won the all weight prize, a silver medal and purse. On the 18th of September, in the same year, at the Crystal Palace, he was invited by the Early Closing Association, and at their fête he won the champion's belt and purse. In the year 1860, at Hornsey Wood House, he added another to his bead-role of victories. The prize was a gold watch, value eighteen guineas. Last year he was compelled to succumb to the celebrated Ben Cooper, of Carlisle, who won the first prize, Smith taking second honours.

G. Sanderson	J. Baines
James Scott	J. Dixon
R. Brunskill	W. Snowdon
John Smith	R. Tyson
T. Robinson	T. Mein

H. Steel, odd man

George Scott obtained an easy victory over Walker; Tiffin surprized everybody by throwing Coulthard, who was supposed to be the coming light weight.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.
George Scott	H. Steel
J. Smith	T. Robinson
James Scott	George Sanderson
Walter Armstrong	J. Robinson
William Armstrong	J. Tiffin

George Scott again threw his man cleverly; Tiffin made a good stand against William Armstrong, but was compelled to succumb.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
Walter Armstrong	R. Brunskill
James Scott	J. Smith
George Scott	William Armstrong

Smith laid down to James Scott, William Armstrong fell to an outside stroke, and Brunskill to a fatal inside click.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
George Scott	Walter Armstrong

James Scott, odd man

The Scotts were too many for the Armstrongs; George Scott throwing the last of the clan by a good hipe, after a deal of trouble with the little 'un, who was very unwilling to be defeated.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
George Scott	James Scott
James Scott	George Scott
James Scott	George Scott

Immense excitement prevailed when the two Scotts came together for the final falls. George Scott was the stouter looking of the two, but it was thought he lacked experience to cope with the scientific wrestler who was the acknowledged champion of the light weights. James Scott was the best wrestler of his day at 11-stones; with a perfect knowledge of the art, he united a well-built frame, a sound judgment, and good temper. No man was more popular in his profession, and no wrestler gained more prizes. His unassuming manner, and the extreme neatness of his appearance in the ring, always drew forth applause from the spectators, and whenever a prize was given for neatest costume, "Bonny Jim" generally carried it off. In the final struggle for this prize his opponent gained the first fall, but in the next two wrestles the champion threw George Scott twice in succession, and was hailed the winner amidst tremendous cheering.

J. Blair	G. Scott
R. Wright	J. Brunskill
James Scott	C. Hutchinson
T. Rawlinson	George Sanderson
J. Brunskill	R. Tyson
William Jameson	J. Thompson
Ben Cooper	John Dixon

Rawlinson had a hard struggle to throw G. Sanderson in this round; he attempted the hipe unsuccessfully, when Sanderson clicked in the inside, and held him for the space of nearly half-a-minute; it looked anybody's fall, but Rawlinson, making a desperate effort, shook off his opponent and threw him cleverly.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.

Fifth Round.

Final Falls.

W. Jameson	R. Wright
R. Wright	W. Jameson
W. Jameson	R. Wright

The two champions were a long time in getting their first hold; no sooner, however, was this accomplished, when Jameson lifted his man and hiped him rather easily. The next wrestle was a short one; Jameson attempted to lift Wright again, when Dick made a sudden movement, and the gigantic Jameson was on his back in a second. A better throw from the breast has seldom been seen, and Jameson seemed astonished. The last fall fairly wearied out the spectators; finally, when it was getting dark, Jameson bored Wright down, and won the chief prize and the Champion's Belt.

The pole leaping claimed a large share of attention amongst the spectators, the fine and graceful style of Musgrove being much admired. He bids fair to rival the fame of his brother, who was the most celebrated leaper of his time, and will be well remembered by all lovers of the art in which he excelled.

This year a prize of one guinea was offered for the neatest costume, with the object of doing away with the rough uniform of "breeks," "grey stockings," &c., so commonly associated with rustic athletics. The prize offered, though small, had the desired effect, several of the competitors being very tastefully attired; none of them, however, came up to James Scott, of Carlisle, whose handsome figure set off his magenta shirt and white drawers to striking advantage, consequently he was adjudged the winner.

In addition to the money prizes, handsome belts, with suitable inscriptions, were presented to William Jameson and James Scott, the champions of the heavy and light weights.

Through the success of this meeting the Committee were enabled to subscribe the sum of forty guineas to the two benevolent institutions, in equal proportions of twenty guineas each. The following gentlemen were appointed to represent the same as Life Governors, viz.:—for Cumberland, Messrs. C. Little and Wm. Armstrong; for Westmoreland, Messrs. John Smith and Thomas Charlton. This wound up the proceedings of the year, which were in all respects highly creditable to the Committee of management.

The sports took place at "Hornsey Wood House," on Good Friday, April 3rd. A great concourse of spectators assembled, and the wrestling entries were larger than usual,—so much so, that it was found impossible, with the utmost exertions of the Committee, to finish the programme on Good Friday. Consequently the wrestling for the London prize was held over till the following day (Saturday).

Wright and Jameson had about a dozen breaks away before they could get into a wrestle. At last they succeeded in getting a good hold. Jameson's must have been a very good one, for he picked Wright up and hiped him quickly. A good deal of time was wasted in the last two falls, which were gained by Wright, amidst general acclamation.

Saturday, April 4th.—There was again a large muster of spectators to witness the wrestling for the London prize, which, in consequence of darkness setting in, could not be decided on Good Friday. There was also some shooting for a gold watch, presented by Mrs. Stones, the proprietress of the Grounds. The sports commenced with the shooting for the watch. Considerable speculation took place on the result, Messrs. Margetson and Dixon being made the favourites, while Messrs. Hodgson, Bell, Martin, and Somerville were freely supported. Mr. Dixon was the first to take the gun in hand, bringing his bird (a slow one) to book; his example was followed by Messrs. Martin and Bell, the others missing. In the second round five of them missed, and in the third round four, viz., Messrs. Milner, Atkinson, Airey, and Armstrong, who retired from the contest. The remaining gentlemen shot up their birds, and at the commencement of the seventh and last round, Mr. Dixon had to kill to win (the others having missed two each). This he accomplished amidst loud cheers. Messrs. Margetson, Somerville, Martin, and Bell tied for the money prizes, killing five each, and agreed to shoot it off, at three birds, when Mr. Margetson and Mr. Somerville killed all and divided.

The shooting being over, the traps were removed and the ring quickly formed for the more athletic sport, and the wrestling began for the London prize.

Stood.	Fell.
G. Sanderson	W. Irving
G. Sanderson	W. Irving

Irving, from his superior size and weight, was the favourite, though Sanderson's well-known scientific qualities as a wrestler rendered him a very formidable opponent. The first fall was gained by Sanderson, who hiped his man in a splendid fashion. In the second round Irving was again thrown easily. In consequence of some suspicious whispering having taken place amongst the partisans of Irving, the Umpires decided that he had allowed himself to be thrown, for the purpose of making bets on the result.

It would be unfair to say that Mr. Sanderson was a party to this, as Irving was apparently thrown on his merits the first time, and if he did not do his best in the last round it was his own affair. The Committee, however, cannot be blamed for the view they took of the matter, and in withholding the first and second prizes, they adopted the only course open to them. After the wrestling a meeting was held, when it was decided that the prizes should go to the next in rotation.

The prize of one guinea for the neatest costume was awarded to Walter Armstrong, of Carlisle.

After the accounts for the year were wound up, the sum of 40 guineas was awarded to the two charitable institutions, in the names of Messrs. T. Charlton and W. Thompson, for Cumberland; and Messrs. R. Margetson and Geo. Gibson, for Westmoreland.

Messrs. R. Margetson and William Thompson were this year appointed Vice-presidents of the Society, and perpetual honorary members of the Committee, with power to vote at all Committee and other meetings for life.

On Whit-Monday, May 25th, two watches were offered to be wrestled for at "Hornsey Wood House," and a great number of amateurs resident in London intended competing for the prizes, but, to the surprise of all, the gigantic Jameson made his appearance, and cast a damper on the whole affair. Several of the wrestlers refused to enter their names, knowing they had no chance against an opponent of Jameson's build. A few adventurous spirits, however, entered the lists, and at the conclusion the result stood thus:—

First prize, a gold watch . .	William Jameson
Second ditto, a silver watch ..	John Dixon
Third ditto . .	Walter Armstrong
Fourth ditto . .	Robert Ritson

Jameson also took the first prize for the pole leaping.

A gold and silver watch were also given for pigeon shooting, which resulted as below :—

First prize, gold watch .	. Mr. Fowler
Second ditto, silver watch	. „ Moore

Messrs. R. Margetson, Davis, and others, also competed.

At the Annual Dinner, held at the "Guildhall Shades," on the 14th of May, the following report of the proceedings and position of the Society was read by the Hon. Secretary, Mr. R. Margetson :—

"In presenting their annual report, your Committee feel great pleasure in congratulating the Society on its increasing prosperity, inasmuch as after giving a larger amount in prizes than was ever given on any former occasion, and, in addition, the handsome sum of forty guineas to the charitable institutions of the two counties, a balance of £100 remains at the banker's to the credit of the Society, being the largest surplus ever held since its first existence. As it is a fact not generally known to the Society at large, it may be mentioned that since the alteration in the mode of collecting their funds was first established, the large amount of THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SEVEN POUNDS has been presented to the charitable institutions of Cumberland and Westmoreland; and when the great benefits derived by the old and helpless of one county, and the children of indigent parents belonging to the other, is considered, your Committee feel assured that this mode of disposing of the surplus, will not only meet your approbation, but that every member of the Society will feel pleasure in the reflection of adding his mite to the assistance of his less fortunate fellow-countrymen.

"Whilst on this subject, your Committee deem it not superfluous to call the attention of all natives of the two counties to the existence of these excellent institutions, the objects of which, and the benefits they have been the means of extending to many necessitous and deserving individuals, cannot be too highly spoken of, or too generally made known, and in making a strong appeal on their behalf, would point out to all young men from the two counties the propriety of becoming active members as soon as they are in a position to do so, and thus recruit the vacancies that may arise in the ranks of existing members from death or other causes, for whilst much good has already been effected, it is to be deplored that their means are all too limited to provide for the numbers of cases presenting themselves, as is evidenced by the fact that this year there are several candidates over and above the number of vacancies at the disposal of each society. In concluding this report your com- Committee would remark that they have, as your representatives, not only important duties to perform in the way of procuring means to carry out their promises for Good Friday, but that, independent of loss of time, it is to them an unavoidable expense, with no return or remuneration beyond the hope of giving satisfaction to the public. It must be evident, however, that anything short of this is thankless and discouraging, and equally so, that in the good-will and desire of the members themselves to do their utmost in seconding the efforts of the committee to make everything go smooth, and carry out the sports of the Society, lies the secret of their success."

The Annual General Meeting was held at the "Guildhall Shades," when the following gentlemen were elected to carry out the business of the Society:—

The wrestling took place for the first time at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Good Friday, March 25th. The sports had hitherto generally been held on the green sward, the ring belted with spectators, resembling that seen on Carlisle swifts, or any other wrestling arena in the North of England. It therefore, at first sight, seemed somewhat preposterous that the large Hall at Islington which serves so many purposes throughout the year, should be selected as the place for holding a meeting of this kind. Success, however, waited upon the new "idea," for by one o'clock, the doors of the Hall were quite besieged, and upon their being opened a rush was speedily made to obtain the best positions, but so ample was the accommodation, that no difficulty whatever was experienced in obtaining seats. Soon after the commencement of the sports, the vast building was comfortably filled, and by four o'clock, the whole of the galleries surrounding the ring were closely packed by eager and excited spectators. This was the year preceding the unhappy disagreement amongst the members composing the Committee of management, who not only squandered away the whole of the surplus money (over £120), but, by their ill-advised and indiscreet bickerings, degraded the Society in the eyes of the public to such an extent, that had some improvement not taken place recently in the management of its affairs, no man of respectability would have allowed his name to be associated with it.

A donation of 40 guineas was handed to the two benevolent institutions. The sum of 20 guineas was also presented to the Warehousemen and Clerk's and Commercial Traveller's Schools, which being contrary to the rules of the Society, was the principal cause of the division amongst its members.

The celebrated champions, Wright and Jameson, were debarred by the Committee this year, in order to give the other wrestlers a better chance of gaining prizes. To debar a man because he is a good wrestler seems rather unfair, and can scarcely be considered good policy, for reasons which will be patent to all who understand and take an interest in this popular exercise.

On the 6th of August, prizes were offered for 9½ stone men, and men of all weights, at Cremorne Gardens. The meeting was well attended, and the wrestlers mustered in great force, more especially the lighter division, a number of whom (11 stone men) brought themselves down to mere shadows so as to compete for the feather weight prize. The wrestling was keenly contested, and resulted as below :—

MEN UNDER 9½ STONE.

First Prize, a gold watch .	George Sanderson
Second ditto, a silver watch .	Walter Armstrong
Third, no prize . .	Richard Tyson

ALL WEIGHTS.

First prize, gold watch .	Richard Coulthard
Second ditto, a silver watch .	John Thompson
Third, no prize . .	Thos. Robinson

The pole leaping was won by James Baines

In the heavy weights, Thompson threw Robinson cleverly, and when he stood up with R. Coulthard to contend for the head prize, he looked like winning, being much stronger than his opponent. Coulthard, however, threw him twice in succession, and was declared the winner. Walter Armstrong threw Tyson (in the feathers) one of the 11 stone "shadows." Then came the final falls with Geo. Sanderson. W. Armstrong gained the first fall, and Sanderson the last two, who was hailed the victor amidst loud applause.

1865.

On the 7th of June, 1864, the Annual Dinner of the Society took place at the "Guildhall Shades," when the officers for the ensuing year were elected as below:—

Chairman.	Treasurer.
Mr. Frank Bell	Jas. Hodgson.

Hon. Secretary, Wm. Armstrong.

Stewards.

Mr. Wm. Thompson
„ J. Brown
„ G. Gibson
„ C. Little
„ R. Atkinson
„ J. S. Brown

On the approach of the Annual General Meeting, a rumour gained currency that exception would be taken to the conduct of the officers who had the control of the affairs of the Society. The first meeting of the subscribers was held at the "Guildhall Shades," Gresham-street, when there was a very full attendance. Mr. Frank Bell officiated as Chairman, supported by Messrs. James Hodgson (Treasurer), William Armstrong (Hon. Sec.), Thompson, Leggett, Margetson, Brown, Little, Atkinson, &c. In opening the proceedings, Mr. Bell adverted to the rumour which he said was flying about, and remarked that he understood a "hole and corner meeting" had been held with the object of turning the present Committee out of office. Messrs. Margetson and Leggett both rose to order, but the Chairman interposed, by saying that he was now quite prepared to proceed with the more immediate business of the meeting. Mr. William Armstrong disclaimed any connection with clandestine meetings, he attended fearlessly in his capacity of Secretary, to lay before the members his accounts for 1864, which he felt confident would prove satisfactory. Mr. Gilchrist opposed the adoption of the accounts, on the ground that the funds had not been carefully or properly expended, and that the rules had been violated by giving douceurs to the Warehousemen and Clerks' and Commercial Travellers Schools. Mr. William Armstrong then informed the company that there was a balance of £123 13s. 11d. in hand, and produced the voucher. Mr. Margetson said he did not wish to create any dissension, but any member of the Society had a perfect right to take exception to any item of expenditure if he thought the same inconsistent and in violation of the rules of the Association. Mr. Margetson continued:—it was essentially necessary to have a permanent Committee. Their experience in former years must convince every one that the business of the Society would never be successfully managed until this reform was brought about. It must be well known to those who were acquainted with the rules, that they had been violated in granting 20 guineas to the above-named schools. They were deserving institutions, but not more so than others, children were well known to be increasing as applicants in the Westmoreland schools, and this year the candidates were far in excess of the vacancies at the disposal of that institution. This was the legitimate channel for the surplus funds. Mr. Charlton moved a vote of want of confidence in the Committee. Mr. Westmoreland objected to the motion, a fortnight's notice must be given. Eventually no motion was put, and the meeting broke up.

A second meeting was held at the same place, on Wednesday, March the 8th. Mr. Frank Bell occupying the chair. After a stormy discussion Mr. Charlton again moved a vote of want of confidence in the Committee, which was seconded by Mr. Mein, and unanimously carried. The three chief officers, Chairman, Secretary, and Treasurer were then summarily voted out, and finally Mr. Leggett was elected Chairman. At a subsequent meeting held under the presidency of the newly-elected Chairman, the following gentlemen formed themselves into a Committee.

Each Committee continued to hold meetings up to Good Friday. The old Committee, headed by Mr. Frank Bell, advertising their wrestling to come off at Cremorne Gardens, while the other, under the presidency of Mr. Leggett, announced their sports to take place at the Agricultural Hall, consequently two meetings would be held on the same day.

GOOD FRIDAY AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL.

A very large company assembled at the Agricultural Hall, and, to judge from the number of spectators, it would scarcely have been thought that another display of the same kind was taking place in the metropolis. The sports commenced with a hurdle race between twelve competitors, in a series of heats, which was won by T. Sedgwick, T. Sanders second, J. Marshall third. The real business of the day then began, the hurdle race merely playing the prelude to the more exciting contests that were to follow.

Musgrove, having also taken the prize at the Cremorne meeting only a few hours previously. P. Winder was second.

Some splendid wrestling took place in this competition. The first two rounds weeded out the inferior men; then followed a display of scientific skill that elicited the heartiest applause from the vast assembly. The final round brought together the celebrated James Scott, of Carlisle, and Jos. Allison, of Wardale—a wrestler who, to greater weight and strength, had also youth in his favour. Despite these advantages, he was thrown cleverly in the first bout. In the second Allison got the best hold, and threw Scott over his knee. Scott tried to lift his man in the last fall, and slipping, was bored down. Allison was, therefore, declared the winner amidst loud cheers; Scott was also warmly applauded for the gallant struggle he had made.

Never in the recollection of the oldest frequenters of the wrestling were so many exciting contests witnessed as took place for this prize, and never were the professionals so utterly defeated by amateurs as on this day. In the second round J. Thompson, an amateur, threw Matthew Lee, the Lyneside champion; the spectators were amazed when they saw the giant's heels cleave the air to the tune of a cross-buttock. In the fourth round Thompson also threw George Maxwell, who won the heavy weight prize at the last annual meeting. The prowess of John Mitchell, however, principally interested the spectators; he commenced by throwing Harry Ivison in the second round. The next man who fell to him was J. Emerson, of Weardale. Jos. Allison of Weardale, came next, who made a splendid effort to throw Mitchell; Allison's legs bent and quivered beneath him, but it seemed as if he might as well have tried to upset the monument, and when his strength was exhausted, Mitchell threw him like a child. As the struggle of the heavy weights drew to a close, it was watched with increased interest; after the fourth round the contest lay between J. Mitchell, Thompson, James Scott, and J. Nattras. The struggle between Nattras and Thompson was a long one, but eventually Nattras gained the fall. Mitchell and Scott then came together, and a splendid wrestle ensued, but all the science of the brilliant light was as nothing in the face of Mitchell's over-powering strength, and he too went down. Then came the final two out of three between Mitchell and Nattras. Both men were pretty well blown — Mitchell apparently the most so—his great bulk causing a difficulty in his breathing, whilst his tall, wiry, active antagonist seemed far freer from signs of over-exertion. After a brief rest they went at it amidst the cheers of the audience, which stood in breathless anxiety, awaiting the result. A good deal of finessing, and they closed; a tremendous effort on each side followed, and in a second, a shout rent the air,—"Nattras is felled!" The excitement was now "piled up" by the next wrestle ending in a dog fall —the decision of the referee being loudly applauded —and the round was resumed, when Mitchell obtained the fall by a cross-buttock. The winner was loudly cheered, and was carried in triumph round the arena.

The winners of the principal prizes during the day were London men; this gave an éclat to the contests which has been seldom equalled, and could scarcely be surpassed.

Walter Armstrong took the prize for neatest costume.

THE WRESTLING AT CREMORNE.

The wrestling held here was one of the consequences of the "split" in the Society. It was arranged that the sports should come off in the park adjoining Ashburnham Hall, which was certainly a very suitable place; but an unhappy change in the weather on the morning of Good Friday necessitated an alteration in this part of the programme. The rain pouring down in torrents all the morning, the attendance of spectators was limited, and the first part of the competition was, to some extent, spiritless. There might be about two thousand persons present, some of them under the covering of umbrellas, while others were content to crouch under the very indifferent shelter of tavern tables. The proceedings were opened by a hurdle race twice round the circle, which was won by R. Musgrove; Archibald Bell second. The prize for pole leaping was also won by Musgrove; James Baines second, William Jameson third. Then came the wrestling by the London residents. Some of the contests were remarkably good, the wrestling of A. Bell being especially admired. The exceeding cool and business-like style of S. Hewetson also attracted general attention, and he was loudly cheered at the close, when the wrestlers stood thus:—

First—Archibald Bell
Second—John Thompson
Third—S. Hewetson

The next prize was for men of all weights, but Jameson was the only heavy weight present. The champion at each encounter threw his comparatively puny opponents like toys and set them on their legs again almost before they knew what had befallen them. In the final falls he threw Joseph Whitehead twice in succession, and was proclaimed the winner.

The last event in the programme was the competition for the 11 stone prize, all comers. Nothing of any interest occurred until J. Milburn and R. Coulthard stood up for the final falls; the struggle was very exciting, resulting in favour of Coulthard, whose victory was hailed with much cheering. The final rounds were not concluded till after nightfall, yet, despite the depressing effects of the rain, the majority of the spectators stayed till the last.

1866.

That portion of the members who were called the New Society, held their first meeting at the "Salutation Hotel," Newgate-street, on the 31st of January, when the statement of accounts was read by the Hon. Secretary, Mr. Margetson, shewing a balance of nearly £80 on the wrong side, to be paid by the Committee. The officers for the year were appointed, and everything put in readiness for the coming anniversaary on Good Friday. The Cremorne party held their meeting on the following Monday, at St. James's Hall, Richard Thwaites, Esq., in the chair. After referring to the unhappy differences which existed between the divided Societies, and hoping that they would again become united, the Chairman called upon the Secretary, Mr. William Armstrong, to read the report, which stated that £105 had been given in prizes last year, and the total receipts were £225 17s. 11d.; the balance in hand after all expenses were paid was £29 3s. Mr. Margetson, the representative of the Agricultural Hall party, said, he came there with a friendly feeling towards the Society for which he had worked forty years, and nothing would please him better than to see the members united again on Good Friday. He must say, the division among them was not creditable. Nothing definite, however, was arranged till the 12th of February, when the amalgamation took place under the presidency of Mr. Margetson. Mr. James Hodgson retained his post as treasurer, and Mr. Jos. Gilchrist was elected Hon. Secretary. The Committee numbered twenty-nine.

The sports took place under the united management, at the Agricultural Hall, on Good Friday, March 30, in the presence of nearly 10,000 spectators. The sinews of war, which had suffered so severely from the split, were substantially renewed, and after paying all expenses, and clearing off the debt incurred the previous year, the Society retained a balance of £74 4s. 6d. to be carried on to the next year's account. The sports were highly appreciated, the wrestling being exceedingly good. The two northern counties sent their best men,—Wright, Jamæson, Scott, Allison, Lawson, Milburn, &c., for the wrestling, and the light and agile Musgrove for the pole leaping.

The sports commenced shortly before two o'clock with the wrestling, by men not exceeding 9½ stones in weight.

G. Sanderson	P. Winder
R. Carruthers	John Ward
John Graham	R. Irving

J. Hope, odd man

The tussle between R. Carruthers and John Ward was fiercely contested; Carruthers was nearly down two or three times, but, recovering himself each time, he at last managed to inside click his man, in a most dexterous manner, and laid him flat on his back.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Graham	J. Hope
J. Briggs	R. Carruthers

G. Sanderson, odd man

Carruthers, in trying to mend his hold with Briggs, made a slip, when his opponent, taking advantage of the same, dashed in and back-heeled him, throwing the feather-weight champion cleverly.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
John Graham	G. Sanderson

J. Briggs, odd man

Final Falls.

John Graham	J. Briggs
John Graham	J. Briggs

John Graham wrestled with great judgment, and displayed an amount of science somewhat extraordinary in so young a wrestler, Some of his falls were worthy of the best days of Scott. In the first round, he treated Briggs to a swinging hipe, throwing him easily. In the next hold, Briggs made an attempt to lift his man, but Graham clicked him down, without falling himself, and was hailed the winner.

A hurdle race round the arena, over six flights of hurdles three feet high, was the next event, which was won easily by R. Musgrove, J. Williams, Keswick, being second.

Wrestling for the Agricultural Hall Cup, presented to the Society by Thomas Rudkin, Esq., and other prizes, by the London residents under 11 stones.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Wright	R. Atkinson
William Gilchrist	J. Hope
William Armstrong	G Graham
T. Saunders	J. Sanderson
G. Sanderson	J. Cartner
G. Lancaster	Geo. Hunton
John Graham	J. Thompson
R. Coulthard	James Edgar

In this round the veteran Robert Atkinson received his coup de grace, and fell, as old men will, before a younger and stronger man. John Graham, the winner of the 9½ stone prize, threw J. Thompson in a highly graceful manner. The winners at Cremorne and Agricultural Hall of last year, came together; the wrestle ended very unsatisfactorily, both men claimed the fall, which looked very much like a "dog" one; but, after a consultation, the award was given to Coulthard.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
R. Coulthard	William Gilchrist
William Armstrong	J. Wright
T. Saunders	G. Lancaster
John Graham	G. Sanderson

W. Bowerbank, odd man

George Sanderson was suffering from a wounded finger, and lost his hold; consequently, John Graham gained the fall without a struggle.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
William Armstrong	William Bowerbank
T. Saunders	R. Coulthard

John Graham, odd man

Saunders, to the surprise of everyone, threw Coulthard very cleverly.

Sixth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
John Graham	T. Saunders

William Armstrong, odd man

The wrestling by John Graham against the vanquisher of Coulthard, was by far the cleverest of the day. Saunders was a good stone and a half the heavier man, and a very awkward customer for any one to cope with, more especially for a man of our little champion's size. No sooner had they got hold, when Saunders put in the hank; Graham, however, knew how to meet this very formidable chip. Instead of allowing himself to be pulled back, he bent forward, jerked his leg out of the hank, and crossed Saunders in a twinkling, making a splendid fall. After this performance, Graham was hailed with repeated ovations.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
John Graham	Wm. Armstrong
Wm. Armstrong	John Graham
John Graham	Wm. Armstrong

A most exciting struggle between the two men. Graham gained the first fall, after being swung round twice, Armstrong gained the second by sheer strength. In the final fall, Graham brought Armstrong down by a beautiful outside stroke. The clever young champion was immediately surrounded by his friends, and carried high around the arena, the cheering of the spectators lasting several minutes. The wrestling of John Graham was the theme of general admiration, and cannot be too highly praised, and when it is taken into consideration that he only weighed 9 stones and a half, there can be no doubt that his performance was the very first of the meeting, and has never been surpassed in the London Ring.

A grand display of pole-leaping here took place, R. Musgrove was first, clearing 10ft. 6in. P. Winder and J. Baines tied at 10ft. 3in.; Wm. Jameson retired after clearing 9ft.

R. Wright	Wm. Jameson

A deal of time was expended in getting hold, the audience the while manifesting great impatience. At last they grappled each other, and, amid the hoarse murmurs of the spectators, many of whom crowded in upon the competitors, the struggle commenced. Jameson having the best of the hold, soon got his man into difficulties, and brought Wright to the earth with a thud. In the second fall, Jameson succeeded in "gathering" Wright, and it seemed all over with him, but Dick made a sudden leap to the ground, twisted his burly antagonist quickly round, and threw him in a most scientific manner by a stroke from the right leg. In the final fall Jameson again got the best hold but Wright declined being bored down, and without waiting for such a catastrophe, whirled Jameson cleverly upon his back by a half-buttock, thus winning the heavy weight prize. This terminated the sports, which were not concluded till a late hour.

The prizes were awarded as follows :—

GOOD FRIDAY AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL.

The sports commenced between one and two o'clock. The first event on the programme was the "London Prize," by men under 11 stone. In the first round some very exciting struggles took place, which at once roused the enthusiasm of the spectators. The wrestle between John Mitchell, the champion of the heavy weights in 1865, and Thomas Graham, was well contested. The first hold ended in a "dog fall," but on renewing the round, Graham threw his man very cleverly. The men who entered for the heavy weights were splendid samples of the bone and sinew of the North of England. All who looked on the proceedings and noted the good humour which prevailed, spent an afternoon of genuine pleasure. That this northern pastime is greatly on the increase, and promises to be still more fully developed, is evidenced by the increase in the number of spectators who flock to the Agricultural Hall each year. Great changes have taken place in the public mind of late years with respect to physical training, and it is to be hoped that this very desirable accomplishment will become more general; no other athletic exercise so thoroughly brings every muscle into play, and in a rough encounter nothing will serve a man in such good stead as a knowledge of the inside click and the cross-buttock. A Londoner was once heard to remark that nothing frightened him so much as getting amongst the feet of a north-countryman.

The best fall of the day was that between J. Tomlinson and John Graham, the latter treating the spectators to a cross-buttock of the real Jimmy Scott pattern. The veteran Robert Atkinson again made his appearance, and was loudly cheered when he threw his first opponent by the "back-heel."

LONDON PRIZE—FOR MEN UNDER 11 STONE.

Second Round.

Stood.	Fell.
Thomas Moffatt	R. Ritson
W. Dixon	J. Williams
Walter Armstrong	Thomas Graham
Matthew Mein	Robert Atkinson
T. Bell	C. Wills
J. Thompson	John Wilson
R. Tomlinson	Thomas Waugh
James Edgar	R. Moffatt
J. Wright	J. Pattinson
Jos. Dixon	George Sanderson
John Graham	R. Coulthard (not present)

Jos. Peel, odd man

Old Robert Atkinson made a rush at Matthew Mein, apparently intending to bore the young 'un down, but Matthew very carefully steadied himself with the click for an instant, "gathered" his man well, and hiped him, making a very clean fall of the old 'un.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.
T. Moffat	J. Peel
W. Dixon	W. Armstrong
Matthew Mein	T. Bell
J. Thompson	R. Tomlinson
James Edgar	J. Wright
John Graham	Jos. Dixon

J. Wright made a good wrestle with James Edgar, trying all he knew; the latter, however, had received a very liberal education in the art of wrestling, and succeeded in throwing his opponent by the swinging hipe. John Graham, by a skilful manœuvre, pulled Jos. Dixon on to his knees.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
Thomas Moffatt	W. Dixon
J. Thompson	M. Mein
John Graham	J. Edgar

Edgar's swinging hipe would not do for John Graham, who stopped it easily, and twisted Edgar down.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Thompson	T. Moffatt

John Graham, odd man.

Thompson and Moffatt soon got hold, when Moffatt tried the hipe, and was throwing his man beautifully, but just before reaching the ground Thompson turned himself, making a dog fall. Loud cries were raised that Moffatt had won, the referee however ordered them to wrestle over again, when the result was another dog fall. Again they got hold, Thompson eventually gaining the fall.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
John Graham	J. Thompson
John Thompson	J. Graham
John Graham	J. Thompson

Graham gained the first fall by the half-buttock. In the second trial Thompson swung his man, throwing him well. Each having gained a fall, the excitement was very great, Graham's friends crowding round him to give him advice. The clever little champion, however, wanted none, for as soon as the pair got hold, he coolly cross-clicked his opponent, never allowing him to have a chance. John Graham thus won the London prize two years in succession.

Next came the hurdle race, which was again won by Robert Musgrove, J. Williams being second.

William Armstrong	J. Edgar

Fourth Round.

J. Snowdon	J. Collins
William Jameson	R. Wright
Jos. Allison	W. Timperton

William Armstrong, odd man

Jameson threw Wright by the inside click, after a severe struggle, thus reducing the result to a certainty.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
William Jameson	Jos. Allison
William Armstrong	J. Snowdon

The second wrestle was the best of the day; and the vast arena rang with the acclamations of the spectators as William Armstrong, an amateur, threw Snowdon by a superb hipe.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
William Jameson	William Armstrong
William Armstrong	William Jameson
William Jameson	William Armstrong

Loud cheers greeted the men as they stood up for the final falls. They soon got into holds, and Jameson was about to lift his man when the latter attempted to buttock the champion, but Jameson threw his weight forward, and screwed him down The result of the second round was unlooked for; as soon as they got hold, Armstrong turned in the buttock, and, amid oft-renewed cheers, brought the giant down. The last fall was a foregone conclusion. It was evident to the spectators that the champion was on his mettle, and that Armstrong's chance was a very poor one. Jameson's favourite chip is the cross buttock, which his extraordinary size and strength enables him to use in a different manner from any other wrestler; instead of turning "in," as a lighter man would have to do, he, by main strength, drags his opponent on to his own (Jameson's) back with such terrific force, that the rebound is generally enough to settle him. In this way he threw Armstrong; Jameson drew him up as if he had been a child, and buttocked him high in the air, and thus won the champion's prize. Jameson was very good humoured at being thrown, and appeared to think it was rather good fun, but in the final wrestle he certainly looked in earnest.

Pole Leaping.

John Allison, of Kendal, divided the first prize with Musgrove, who broke the cross bar at 10 ft. 3 in.; James Baines was third.

The Annual General Meeting of the Society was held at the "Salutation Hotel," Newgate Street, on Feb. 19th, when the following officers were elected:—

CHAIRMAN.	VICE-CHAIRMAN.
Mr. William Leggett.	Major Wills.
TREASURER.	HON. SEC.
Mr. Alex. Scott.	Mr. R. Margetson (resigned).

Mr. Walter Armstrong was elected Hon. Sec. on the 11th of March.

STEWARDS.

At a subsequent meeting, the Chairman having announced that Mr. Margetson had resigned the office of Secretary, Mr. Walter Armstrong was elected to fill the vacant position. Messrs. William Thomas Thwaites, J. C. Thwaites, and Mr. John Sawer, were also elected as Stewards.

Good Friday at the Agricultural Hall.

The great annual gathering took place at the Agricultural Hall on Good Friday, April 10th. The programme contained the names of the most celebrated wrestlers from the North. There was also a large entry for the London Prize, which included the silver cup given by Mr. Charles Rudkin. A prize was this year offered for 9½ stone men, who, by the way, generally show more science than their heavier brethren. This is a class of wrestlers which certainly ought to be encouraged. A great many young men coming from the North do not scale more than this weight, consequently they are deterred from wrestling, because they would have no chance in the 11 stone prize. Naturally they are discouraged, and soon lose all interest in the sport. The best amateurs we have had of late years have been 9½ stone men, and although they have won prizes in the 11 stone class, it has been against fearful odds. If the 9½ stone prize is a success in the country, where bone and sinew are more extensively developed, surely, here in London, amongst men whose sedentary habits tend to reduce their weight so considerably, a feather weight prize ought to produce the largest entry.

The all weight prize was very interesting, but which, as a matter of course, resolved itself into a match between Wright and Jameson. The spectators seemed much delighted with the pole-leaping, which was keenly contested. The very judicious prize, given for the neatest costume, produced a good effect, and the contrast between the elegant tights, and the "breeks and black stockings" of former days was very great. There was an immense attendance, almost the largest ever known. The telegraph boards, showing each competitors' number corresponding with his name on the programme, was a well-conceived idea, and carried out to perfection, under the active superintendence of Mr. Samuel Cochrane. Altogether the meeting was a very successful one, the proceeds enabling the Committee to resume their very laudable practice of subscribing to the benevolent institutions of the two counties. Umpires, Messrs. Mein and Wills. Referee, Mr. Leggett.

Third Round.

G. Sanderson	T. Waugh
John Graham	J. Tomlinson
George Graham	Jos. Scaife
J. Tiffin	J. Moncrief
J. Furness	J. Walsh

Sanderson hiped Waugh, Graham cross-buttocked Tomlinson. The most exciting struggle of the round was between Tiffin and Moncrief; they were an endless time in getting hold, each trying to gain an advantage. Tiffin, as a matter of course, got the better hold, and, working his man round, threw him with a cross-buttock.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
G. Sanderson	J. Furness
J. Tiffin	George Graham

John Graham, odd man

Sanderson hiped Furness easily. George Grahan was too young for Tiffin, who turned in and buttocked him.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Tiffin	John Graham

G. Sanderson, odd man

Immense excitement prevailed when it transpired that Tiffin and John Graham were drawn together.

Tiffin struggled hard for a superior hold but all in vain, and was, for once, obliged to be content with a fair grip. He immediately made tracks for a buttock. Graham, however, happened to be looking out for that particular chip, and stopped the manœuvre, when the "old un," as quick as lightning, tried the outside stroke, which Graham resisted on the first attempt, but, failing the second, was thrown.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
George Sanderson	J. Tiffin
George Sanderson	J. Tiffin

The great reputation of Tiffin, the acknowledged champion of the "feather weights," rendered him the favourite when the two men stood up for the final falls. The London men, however, had great confidence in their old friend, George Sanderson, and a hearty cheer greeted him as he shook hands with the "invincible" before taking the first hold. Tiffin was the first to show play with the outside stroke, which was completely thrown away upon his opponent, for Sanderson gathered him up in his arms, and hiped him beautifully. The delight of the audience knew no bounds when Sanderson threw the little champion, and cries of "Bravo, Geordie," were heard all round the hall. After a pause, they came together again, but the struggle was of short duration. Tiffin failed to click his man, his friends calling out "Buttock him, Tiffin." Sanderson immediately took the hint, and floored his man with a splendid cross-buttock. The spectators were much delighted at the victory of Sanderson, who almost more than any other wrestler, deserves the popularity he enjoys. After the excitement was a little allayed, his friends gathered anxiously round him, and after many congratulations had been passed, some one said, "How did you fell him, Geordie?" "Why, man," said George, "I crossed him baith legs, and fairly buried him."

The hurdle race was won by J. Williams; J. Walsh second.

J. Edgar	T. Walker

John Graham, Longtown, odd man

Tiffin buttocked Thompson cleverly, after a very exciting struggle. Dick Wright playfully threw J. Wright, throwing a semi-somersault over his remains. Lawson met a good match in R. Coulthard; more than once the Jarrow champion was within an ace of being thrown, but at length he improved his hold, and threw Coulthard with the hipe in a most superb manner. W. Park electrified the spectators by throwing Geo. Steadman, a man nearly twice his own weight.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
C. Kennedy	J. Graham, Longtown
Wm. Jameson	W. Park
R. Wright	J. Tiffin
J. Edgar	J. Bell

W. Lawson, odd man.

Jameson, the biggest man at present wrestling was drawn against the smallest man of the light weights, W. Park, of Cockermouth. The contrast between the two can be imagined: Jameson being about 16 stone, and Park under 9½ stone. Tiffin, who was in the ring at the same time, being drawn against Wright, suggested that he ought to be allowed to assist Park, when the champion playfully opened, his arms to receive them both. In the actual wrestle, Jameson lifted Park and laid him down like a pound-weight. Wright threw Tiffin quite as easily.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
R. Wright	C. Kennedy
W. Jameson	W. Lawson

J. Edgar, odd man

In this round, Wright and Jameson threw their two opponents without an effort.

Sixth Round.

William Jameson	J. Edgar

R. Wright, odd man

Final Falls.

R. Wright	W. Jameson
R. Wright	W. Jameson

The champions soon got hold, and after a little dodging, slipped. At once they got into grips again, both seeming anxious to make play. Jameson tried to lift Wright, but Dick preferred keeping on the ground, and watching his opportunity, threw his opponent with the outside stoke. The result was greeted with loud cheering. An interval of five minutes, and the rivals met for the second fall. This time Dick availed himself of his celebrated chip and twisted Jameson from off his breast. The cheering was tremendous, and Wright was carried round the ring in triumph.

Pole Leaping.

J. Allison, of Kendal, won the first prize for the pole leaping, clearing 10 feet 3 inches. James Baines was second. Allison was a troublesome customer to Musgrove last year, and divided the prize with him.

A smart wrestle between John Graham and Jos. Dixon, resulting in what to some appeared to be a dog-fall, was given in by the Umpires in favour of Graham. The decision, though a just one, was much cavilled at, and gave rise to a very animated discussion.

G. Sanderson wrestled well for this prize considering that he was suffering from a sprained instep. Old Robert Atkinson too struggled gamely, but his old fashioned chip, viz., the back heel is not good enough for the young blood he has to meet every year. Very few prizes have fallen to the old man's share during the many years he has been a competitor on Good Friday; yet, notwithstanding the fact that he is not particularly celebrated for his skill in the art of wrestling, his appearance is always the signal for a round of cheering, and a Good Friday would scarcely be considered complete without his venerable head and "breeks and grey stockings."

The final falls between Coulthard and Edgar were very interesting displays of science, and were well contested. Coulthard gained the first fall by the hank. In the second trial Edgar threw his opponent with the swinging hipe. They had now each gained a fall, and the last bout created much interest, Coulthard finally throwing Edgar by the inside click, thus winning the London prize.

The annual dinner took place at the "Salutation Hotel," Newgate-street, on Wednesday, the 13th of May. Mr. Leggett occupied the chair, supported by Messrs. Thomas Mein, Walter Armstrong (Hon. Sec.), S. Cochrane, William Routledge, Matthew Mein, Geo. Sanderson, William Topping, William Thwaites, J. C. Thwaites, Gavin Irving, Jos. Dixon, &c. After the usual loyal and patriotic toasts had been duly honoured, the Chairman gave the toast of the evening, "Success to the Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society." The healths of the Chairman, Vice-Chairman. Hon. Secretary, and Treasurer having been proposed and responded to, the Chairman, in a few well-chosen words, gave the ever popular toast of "The Bonnie Lassies of Cumberland and Westmoreland," calling upon Mr. William Topping to respond. Mr. Topping replied in a very graceful and humorous speech, disclaiming, however, any pretensions to being the fittest person to do honour to such a toast. The remainder of the evening was enlivened by some excellent singing, and a very satisfactory year was brought to a close.

The Annual General Meeting was held at the "Salutation Hotel," Newgate-street, on Wednesday the 26th January, when a large number of influential members of the Society were present. The balance sheet, showing a surplus of over £40, after giving a donation of twenty guineas to the benevolent institutions connected with the two counties, having been read by the Secretary and unanimously adopted by the meeting, the following gentlemen were elected as Stewards for the year.

The proceedings were of a very satisfactory character, the members expressing themselves highly pleased with the exertions of the Committee during the previous year.

Great efforts were made to render the anniversary on Good Friday a successful one. A public meeting was held every week up to the day, and frequently a private Committee meeting in addition. A number of men carrying sandwich boards with large placards of the sports, were sent round the principal thoroughfares in the metropolis, who at the same time distributed 20,000 of the following handbills :—

"CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND WRESTLING SOCIETY.

"The great Annual Meeting of the above Society will take place at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Good Friday, March 26th 1869.

"This will be the sixth successive year in which these popular sports have been held at the same place, and, to judge from the increase in the number of spectators each year, the public interest has not abated, neither has there been any falling off in the wrestling, nor in the manner of carrying out the attractive Programmes issued year after year. One of the objects of this Society is to assist in supporting two benevolent institutions, although the origin of the Association was to afford an opportunity for the natives of the two great wrestling counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland to meet once a year for the purpose of engaging in those exercises for which they have obtained a world-wide celebrity.

"The list of prizes this year is divided into three classes, viz. :—London residents not exceeding eleven stones, all comers from the North not exceeding eleven stones, and the great champion prize for men of all weights. Prizes also for hurdle racing and pole leaping will be offered sufficient to induce the best men from the North to put in an appearance.

"The celebrated wrestlers, Richard Wright of Longtown, and William Jameson, of Penrith, have both been specially invited on this occasion. It may be interesting to the public to say a few words respecting these two mighty exponents of the art of wrestling. Richard Wright, or as he is popularly styled, the "Border Champion," weighs about 14 stones, and is by far the most scientific wrestler the present generation has seen. The dexterity of his movements is something marvellous, and the clever manner in which he disposes of a burly antagonist, scarcely less formidable looking than himself, must be seen at the Agricultural Hall, on Good Friday, to be thoroughly appreciated. During the last fifteen years he has won over 500 prizes, and there is not a ring in England from which he has not taken either a cup or a belt. William Jameson commenced his career as a pole leaper, being then a mere stripling; his increasing weight, however, soon reminded him that his attention must be turned to something different, and wrestling became his chief pursuit. He is now about 16 stones in weight, and, although he does not follow pole leaping as a profession, he occasionally competes for a prize, and can even yet clear the cross-bar at an altitude of ten feet, a feat unparalleled in athletic history, when his great size is taken into consideration. The burly form of the great athlète as he clears the cross-bar, his enormous bulk high in the air, making the pole quiver under his tremendous weight, is more like a fable than a reality.

"The lithe Musgrove will also be there, the representative of a race of pole leapers; younger brother of the late champion, who cleared 11 feet 6 inches.

"A new feature will be introduced into the steeplechase in the shape of a water jump, which is expected to create much amusement.

"The pole leaping and steeplechase will come off last, to enable those visitors arriving late, to witness this interesting portion of the day's sports.

"The Committee have great pleasure in informing the public that no pains have been spared to render the anniversary on Good Friday worthy the high position of the Society, and that arrangements have been made to secure every comfort to all classes of spectators. The Gates will open at One, p.m. Admission, 1s.; Front seats, 2s. 6d.; Reserved seats, 5s.

"WALTER ARMSTRONG, Hon. Sec."

The wrestling was again held at the Agricultural Hall. The great and increasing popularity of the sports attracted an immense gathering. Every part of the capacious building was crowded with well-dressed men, presenting a perfect sea of faces. As usual, the quiet decorum of the spectators was remarkable; not the semblance of chaff was heard either at the officials or competitors, which must have surprised most strangers who have been accustomed to see mixed assemblages of a similar kind. The cockney appeared quite out of his element amidst the peculiar dialect which everywhere assailed him, and frequently displayed the utmost astonishment at the conversation going on around him, more especially at some of the technical terms used by the wrestlers. The uninitiated spectator would also be surprised sometimes to see a wrestler standing on his head, and seemingly in a terrible plight, when he would be pulled up by the hand, give himself a shake together, and be ready for the fray again.

The proceedings commenced a little before two o'clock with the prize for London men, which was won by John Thompson, Penrith; the celebrated John Graham taking second honours. Graham wrestled very gamely, but was evidently not in his best "fettle." The spectators were much pleased at Thompson's victory, and cheered him to the echo. J. Beeby won the hurdle race very easily from Musgrove, whose "performance" gave anything but satisfaction,—a circumstance which is much to be regretted, and if allowed to be repeated will have a very unfavourable effect on the sports, which have always been carried out, on the part of the competitors, with the strictest integrity. The Society cannot be too severe in dealing with such unworthy attempts at imposition. Independent of this drawback, the amusement caused by the water jump in the race was of a most sensational kind; several of the competitors jumped fairly into the pool, and as many as three were in at the same time, Tom Robinson actually sitting down in it, convulsing the spectators with laughter. The display of pole-leaping was the best ever seen at the Hall, Musgrove exceeded all his previous efforts, closely followed, however, by a new aspirant, viz.:—D. Anderson, of Alnwick. The greatest sensation, however, was caused in the heavy weight prize, by the celebrated Border champion, Richard Wright, falling in the first round to an amateur of the name of Picton. It was a great fluke, and perfectly petrified the spectators, as it is well known that no two men in the world can throw the scientific Dick. Jameson made short work of the vanquisher of Wright in the following round, but fell himself in the fourth round, when buttocking Lawson. The overthrow of Jameson and Wright was quite unexpected.

The arrangements gave universal satisfaction. The Daily Telegraph commenting upon the proceedings remarks:—"The present celebration was marked by business-like activity on the part of the Committee and officers, and was in all essential respects highly creditable to the Society."

The Umpires were Messrs. William Thos. Thwaites and Major Wills. Referee, Mr. R. Margetson.

THE LONDON PRIZE—MEN NOT EXCEEDING 11 STONE.

Second Round.

Stood.	Fell.
T. Cowing	R. Watson
T. Moore	T. Jackson
H. Johnston	J. G. Thompson
J. Furness	D. Johnstone
R. Coulthard	T. Price
J. Thompson	G. Sanderson
John Graham (Carlisle)	G. W. Wood
T. Moffatt	J. Parkin
J. Wilson	R. Moffatt
Matthew Mein	R. Tomlinson
J. Reed	J. Baty
J. Graham (Longtown)	W. Armstrong
J. Mitchell	W. Little
J. Donald	J. G. Thompson

H. Atkinson, odd man.

This round was opened by Cowing and Watson, the latter of whom was easily thrown by the half-buttock. Coulthard threw Price with the swinging hipe. Sanderson and Thompson had a tough bout; Sanderson inserted the inside click but had not strength enough to bear his man down, and Thompson fairly wore him out.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Graham (Carlisle)	T. Moore
T. Cowing	J. Graham (Longtown)
J. Thompson	J. Wilson
R. Coulthard	H. Johnstone
T. Moffatt	J. Reed
M. Mein	J. Donald
J. Mitchell	H. Atkinson
J. Tomlinson	J. Furness

T. Walker, odd man.

Graham of Longtown and Cowing had an exciting struggle, the latter finally throwing his man with the hipe. Thompson threw Wilson with the buttock, and Coulthard threw Johnston with the swinging hipe.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Thompson	T. Moffatt
J. Graham (Carlisle)	J. Mitchell
R. Coulthard	T. Walker
M. Mein	J. Cowing

J. Tomlinson, odd man.

Thompson and Moffatt were a long time in the ring, the first hold resulting in a slip; when they came together again, Thompson grassed his man in a very smart manner. Matthew Mein hanked Tom Cowing.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Graham (Carlisle)	J. Tomlinson
J. Thompson	R. Coulthard

M. Mein, odd man

Graham threw Tomlinson with a good cross-buttock. Thompson swung Coulthard fairly on to his back.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Thompson	M. Mein
J. Graham, odd man

Final Falls.

J. Thompson	J. Graham
J. Graham	J. Thompson
J. Thompson	J. Graham

No sooner had they got hold when Thompson threw Graham with the swing. In the second struggle Graham took hold quickly and threw his man with a scientific inside click for which he is famous; in the last hold Graham was compelled to succumb to superior weight and strength.

Hurdle Race.

J. Beeby	First
R. Musgrove . . .	Second
J. Williams . . .	Third
D. Anderson . . .	Fourth

11 Stone Prize—All Comers.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Milburn	R. Musgrove
J. Donald	M. Mein
W. Lawson	J. Tomlinson
J. Allison	R. Coulthard
T. Cowing	R. Atkinson
C. Kennedy	W. Beattie
D. Wills	T. Moffatt

Lawson threw Tomlinson with a beautiful hipe. Coulthard "laid" down to Jos. Allison. The veteran,

R. Atkinson, got the back heel in with Cowing, but he was unable to make use of it, as his antagonist by sheer strength bored him down, the old man making a good struggle of it to the last.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
J. Milburn	D. Wills
J. Allison	J. Donald
W. Lawson	T. Cowing
C. Kennedy	T. Walker

Fifth Round.

W. Lawson	J. Allison
C. Kennedy	J. Milburn

An exciting contest took place between Lawson and Allison. The latter is the stouter built man, but Lawson is the prettier wrestler. Each tried all he knew. Lawson eventually disposed of his man with the hipe. Kennedy threw Milburn very cleverly with the inside click.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
W. Lawson	C. Kennedy
C. Kennedy	W. Lawson
W. Lawson	C. Kennedy

The final falls were of very short duration. Kennedy fell to the buttock in the first trial, in the second he managed to throw Lawson by slipping his head; Lawson, however, finally buttocked Kennedy high in the air, and was proclaimed the winner.

The overthrow of Rich. Wright in the first round, as before stated, was a surprise to every one. He was drawn against A. Picton, an amateur, and quite unknown to fame. They were just about the same height, and not much difference in their weight; perhaps Picton might be a little the heavier. Several times they essayed to get hold. Wright's friends were very impatient at his wasting so much time on a mere novice, calling out to him, "Dad him doon, Dick." Wright, perhaps, a little nettled, took hold at the wrong time, made a sudden move, missed his foot, and fell. There was no mistake about it, although difficult to realize at the time. The greatest excitement ensued, and the cheering was tremendous as Picton carried his ticket to the reporter's table. This unexpected incident altered the aspect of affairs, and, to all appearance, left Jameson master of the field. The result, however, proved otherwise, much to the delight of the spectators, who seemed to think that Jameson and Wright had won the first prize quite often enough.

ALL WEIGHTS—ALL COMERS.

Third Round.

Stood.	Fell.
R. Mason	R. Briscoe
J. Holmes	R. Musgrove
G. Steadman	J. Allison
G. Sanderson	T. Moffatt
J. Graham	T. Walker

Stood.	Fell.
W. Jameson	A. Picton
C. Kennedy	R. Coulthard

W. Lawson, odd man

Jameson and Picton soon got hold. The champion lifted Picton at once, and hiped him very carefully, sticking to him till they reached the ground, which they did, with a thud that resounded all over the ring.

Fourth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
W. Lawson	W. Jameson
R. Mason	T. Cowing
G. Steadman	J. Wright
C. Kennedy	J. Holmes
G. Sanderson	J. Graham

The issue between Lawson and Jameson was unlooked for. It looked almost ridiculous for Lawson to strike the huge leg of Jameson (which seemed immovable), from the ground. In attempting to buttock Lawson, Jameson slipped, and fell under him. The greatest excitement prevailed; a great number of the spectators maintained it was a dog-fall. However, the referee decided that Jameson had been thrown, but it took some time to convince the people that the champion was really down.

Fifth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
W. Lawson	C. Kennedy
G. Steadman	R. Mason

George Sanderson, odd man

Sixth Round.

Stood.	Fell.
W. Lawson	G. Sanderson

G. Steadman, odd man

W. Lawson had a hard struggle to get rid of Sanderson. Lawson hiped his man, thinking he had nothing to do but drop him to ground, instead of which Sanderson landed on his feet, when his opponent again applied the hipe successfully.

Final Falls.

Stood.	Fell.
G. Steadman	W. Lawson
W. Lawson	G. Steadman
G. Steadman	W. Lawson

The men, as they stood up for the final falls, were loudly cheered. Both are splendid wrestlers. Lawson, the most scientific of the two, laboured under the disadvantage of being at least two stone lighter than his opponent, who is also a much younger man, and bids fair to be a formidable rival to Wright and Jameson. In the first bout Lawson tried the buttock, but failed, Steadman screwing him down over his knee. On getting hold again Lawson gained the fall by a smart buttock. The time occupied in wrestling the final falls was twenty minutes; the men slipped hold no fewer than four times. Lawson by this time was gradually tiring, and, when they got into grips, Steadman, the fresher of the two, bored his man down. The men were well matched, and a finer struggle has seldom been witnessed. The cheers' which were loud and long, were equally and deservedly bestowed on both men.

Pole Leaping.

For this event there were a dozen entries, but only eight came to the scratch, namely, Mark Shearman, of Keswick; J. Beeby, Little Orton; John Graham, Carlisle; R. Musgrove, Cockermouth; D. Anderson, Alnwick; William Jameson, Penrith; James Baines, Penrith; J. Tomlinson, Carlisle. The standard was first hoisted at 6 feet 6 inches, but before the height became 8 feet 6 inches, Beeby, Graham, Tomlinson, and William Jameson, retired—the latter, considering that he scaled over 16 stone, jumped with remarkable agility. Shearman and Baines also retired at 9 feet 6 inches, at which height they tied. The issue was now left to Musgrove and Anderson. The latter made a gallant struggle against the now acknowledged champion with the pole. It was only when the bar was raised to 10 feet 7 inches that he retired, defeated, it is true, but not disgraced, as was testified by the applause which he carried with him out of the arena.

The sports were brought to a close at 8 o'clock, after which the prizes were awarded to the winners, as follows:—

ANNUAL DINNER.

The Annual Dinner of the Society was held at the "Salutation Hotel," Newgate-street, on Wednesday the 5th of May, Mr. Wm. Leggett in the chair, Major Wells occupied the Vice, supported by Messrs. Thos. Mein (Treasurer), Walter Armstrong (Hon. Sec.), R. Margetson, James Hodgson, Wm. Armstrong, Saml. Cochrane, George Felton, Wm. Topping, M. Mein, G. Irving, J. Dixon, Wm. Thos. Thwaites, Wm. Routledge, J. Illingworth, &c. After the usual loyal toasts had been duly honoured, the Chairman gave the Army, Navy, and Volunteers. Major Wills briefly responded for the former branch of the service, and Captain Margetson, of the (4th City R.V.C.) for the volunteers. He always felt great pleasure in responding on their behalf, and he could fully endorse the observation of the gallant Major, for in his younger days he (Captain Margetson) had also served in the army. He felt certain that the volunteer movement had been the great means of preserving peace, for their enemies would not dare to show their teeth while Great Britain had such an army of citizens as they now possessed. In the north, more particularly in their native counties, the movement had increased, and the inspecting generals had held them up as a pattern to others.

The Chairman next proposed the toast of the evening "Success to the Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society;" and in doing so, remarked that the robust and healthy frames of those he saw before him, was a convincing proof, if any were wanting, that the art of wrestling was conducive to the well-being of its votaries, and rendered them better able to withstand the trials and anxieties to which men who are engaged in commercial pursuits are constantly exposed.

Capt. Margetson proposed the health of the Chairman.

The Chairman, in reply, said he had always endeavoured to make himself an independent member of the Society; he had sided with no party, and should always continue to act in that spirit of neutrality which became a man who was placed in the position he had been.

Mr. Walter Armstrong, the Hon. Sec., then rose and said that "the Committee thought it would only be dealing fairly and courteously with the subscribers and supporters of the institution, to take the earliest opportunity of stating our financial position. We commenced this year with a balance of £40 13s. Ten guineas we received from Messrs. Spiers and Pond, in the shape of a silver cup; £325 was taken on Good Friday, and the cash for tickets and donations amounted to about £80, making a total of £445. On the other side we paid the large sum of £100 for the Agricultural Hall. The prizes cost £122 12s. 6d., and sundry other expenses, say £100. Twenty guineas presented to the two benevolent institutions of Cumberland and Westmoreland; total, £343, leaving the handsome balance of £102 in hard cash, the largest surplus, with the exception of 1863 and 1864, for a number of years. There can be no doubt, gentlemen, that our expenses have been heavy, but the end has justified the means. In these advertising days it is necessary to keep pace with the times. The penny-wise system will never raise this Society to the position which it is destined to hold, namely, the first athletic society in the kingdom; and I hope, gentlemen, the day is not far distant when this Association will, by having a benevolent fund of its own, meet in a more efficient manner the wants of those who have passed into the sere and yellow leaf.

Mr. Jas. Hodgson proposed the health of the Treasurer, and the rest of the officers, to which Mr. Mein responded. Some excellent singing then followed,

Mr. Cochrane's "Digging for Gould," playing a conspicuous part. The last song of the evening was "John Peel," from Mr. Matthew Mein, which found a response in the hearts of all the north countrymen present.

RULES.

The following revised rules were passed at a general meeting held at the "Salutation Hotel," Newgate-street, on the 6th March, 1867.

1.—That this Society shall be designated the Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society.

2.—That the benefits conferred by this Society shall be confined to Natives of Cumberland and Westmoreland, and at the discretion of the Committee to other North-country men, to whom suitable Prizes shall be given to be Wrestled for, on Good Friday, in each year; the amount and number of such Prizes to be regulated by the Committee; and should any surplus money arise, over and above £150, that power shall be given to the Committee to decide the amount of Gift (if any), which shall be handed over to the Benevolent Institutions of Cumberland and Westmoreland; all such Gifts from this Society, be it understood, shall be equally divided betwixt the two.

3.—That the government of this Society shall be vested in a Committee of Eleven Members, consisting of Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Treasurer, Secretary, and seven Stewards, to be elected annually, by ballot or otherwise, that the Committee shall have full power, and that all its transactions shall be binding until the election of the new Committee, at the Annual General Meeting: and that Five of the Committee shall be a Quorum.

4.—That no person shall be eligible to be elected on the Committee, or become a Member of this Society, or be allowed to propose any Resolution, or Vote at any Meeting, who has not subscribed Two Shillings and Sixpence or upwards; or be allowed to Wrestle, unless his Subscription has been duly paid up before the time of Wrestling.

5.—That the Secretary shall read a Report of the Transactions of the Committee whenever the same shall be required.

6.—That any Member of the Society having a Complaint to make, shall make it to the Secretary, in writing, who shall have power, at all times, to call a Private Meeting of the Committee for the dispatch of such business, and their decision upon it shall be final.

7.—That all sums of money arising from Subscriptions or otherwise shall be paid into the hands of the Treasurer every Thursday or other night, when the Meetings take place, for the necessary expenses of the Society.

8.—That proper books shall be provided for the use of the Society, and all Receipts and Disbursements be entered therein, in such manner as the Committee shall direct.

9.—That at the General Meetings of the Committee (at which subscribers shall be allowed to attend) the Treasurer shall produce his accounts of Receipts and Payments, and Cash in hand, the particulars of which shall be entered as part of the Minutes.

10.—That the number and amount of Prizes, and the different Classes of Weights, shall be regulated by the Committee.

11.—That should any dispute arise in the Ring betwixt the Umpires, the decision of the Referee shall be final; and any individual refusing to conform to the usual Rules of Wrestling, either by refusing to take fair hold—to Wrestle over again or otherwise—the Umpire shall have full power to strike out his name.

12.—That should any Member or Members do any act to the dishonour or prejudice of the Society, either in the Ring or out of it, the Committee shall have full power to expel him or them from the Society; but that it shall not be considered a disgrace for any Member of the Society to challenge another to Wrestle, provided it is done privately, and not by public advertisement (with his knowledge and and consent); but if any Member shall challenge, or cause another to be challenged by public advertisement, the Committee shall expel him from the Society.

13.—That should any Member buy or sell, or offer to buy or sell, a Fall; or by neglecting to do his best, and thereby suffer himself to be unfairly thrown, he shall be expelled from the Society; and any Prize he may have been entitled to, shall be forfeited by him, and given to the next in rotation.

14.—That the Anniversary shall take place immediately after the Wrestling, when the Chairman shall deliver the Prizes to each successful Competitor.

15.—That a Private Meeting of the Committee and Stewards be convened, a fortnight after Good Friday, for the settlement of Accounts, that a General Meeting of the Society, may be held not later than midsummer, when a dinner shall be provided at Two Shillings and Sixpence, each Member. That Two Tickets shall be allowed to each Member of the Committee, at the Expense of the Society; and that the Tickets shall express the Time and Place of Meeting.

16.—That the Balance Sheet be Printed and Circulated amongst the Subscribers at least one week before the Annual General Meeting.

17.—That the Annual General Meeting of the Society shall be convened by public advertisement, at least one Month before Good Friday, stating the Time and Place where the Meeting will be held, to elect Officers, and to receive the Annual Report of the Committee, which shall contain a general Statement of Accounts, duly audited; the Rules and Progress of the Society, and an accurate List of Subscribers.

18.—That power be given to the Committee to render Pecuniary Assistance, at the expense of the Society, to deserving Members in distress.

19.—That none of the Rules herein contained shall be rescinded, or altered, or new ones made except at the Annual General Meeting of the Society; and that any Member or Members wishing to introduce any new Rules or Regulations, he or they must give notice of the same, in writing, to the Secretary, at least one week previous to the Annual General Meeting; and that none of the Rules or Alterations shall be binding until confirmed at the Annual General Meeting of the Society.

20.—That all the Rules and Regulations affecting the Cumberland and Westmoreland Wrestling Society heretofore existing shall be null and void; and that the present Rules and Regulations shall be the governing Rules of the Society.
